Hurry Plans For Building Of Warplanes

Aviation Leaders Discuss Means To Speed up Program

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A quick step-up of American warplane production, with the twin goal of rushing Allied orders and expanding ten-fold the country's own flying forces, became the immediate spearhead today of the government defensive drive.

While representatives of more than 40 aviation companies joined army, navy and treasury officials in discussing a 50,000 plane program, other preparedness developments also came to the front:

1. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, decrying "hysterical chatter of calamity and invasion," said in a radio speech that "we are in danger x x x because American people have attempted to interfere with the internal affairs of Europe."

2. The senate appropriations committee considered the $1,827,000,000 army bill, hoping to send both that measure and the $1,303,980,000 navy bill to the White House by June 1.

3. Senators George (D-Ga) and Connally (D-Tex.) advocated establishing an industrial-labor-military board as the house naval committee took up a bill designed to speed shipbuilders by relaxing labor laws.

The usual conference of airplane makers and federal officials was called in response to President Roosevelt's recommendation that production be increased to 50,000 planes a year and that the armed services acquire a total of 50,000 fighting aircraft.

Secretary Morgenthau told reporters last night that obtaining sufficient engines was the principal difficulty in putting this program into effect.

"While industry is working two or three shifts a day," he said, "it

Lindbergh Urges Less Meddling In Foreign Affairs

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — America need not fear invasion, in the opinion of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, "unless the American people bring it on through their own quarreling and meddling with affairs abroad."

Declaring that "a definite policy of defense" is the first necessity, the famous aviator called in a radio broadcast last night for an end to "hysterical chatter of calamity and invasion."

"We are in danger of war today," he said, "not because European people have attempted to interfere with the internal affairs of America, but because American people have attempted to interfere with the internal affairs of Europe."

Lindbergh, an army air corps reserve officer, asserted that America needs "a greater air force, a greater army and a greater navy," but added:

"Until we have decided upon a definite policy of defense, the mere construction of large numbers of aircraft will not be adequate for our national safety."

For defense of the nation alone, he continued, the United States would need "large numbers of small bombers and pursuit planes," but this "eventually would leave us as vulnerable to air attack as the nations of Europe are today."

For defense of the western hemisphere, he said, the United States would need "long range bombers capable of attacking a hostile fleet a thousand miles at sea."

"Let us form with our neighboring nations a clear and definite policy of American defense," he proposed.

"An adequate defense of the western hemisphere necessitates the co-operation of the other nations of this hemisphere. Our military aircraft must have access to their bases. Their foreign policy must have some relationship to ours. We cannot hold this hemisphere free from foreign war if nations which lie within it declare war on foreign powers."

Lindbergh spoke on the eve of America Believed Receptive Toward Military Service

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La.—(AP)—Senator Lodge (R.-Mass.) advocated today a regular United States army of 750,000 men while several officers, here for the third army maneuvers, said they believed that Americans might be receptive soon to compulsory military training.

An army officer, declining use of his name, said in informal discussion, "I believe they are about ready for compulsory training. The people aren't shocked any more by what happens. They are falling right in line with the president's request for defense funds."

Senator Lodge, a cavalry reserve captain, declared the United States "should never draw the sword unless it for our own cause," and said he did not regard the British Isles as America's "first line of defense."

But he added, "I don't think we would tolerate an attack on Canada, or the Caribbean area, or into South America. . . ."

Nazi Air Force Sets Fast Pace for Troops

Endless Stream of Gray-Clad Soldiers Pours Westward in Race to Paris; Hitler Planning Open Battle

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT—At the invitation of Chancellor Hitler, I stand today amidst the clamor and deafening roar of a fast-moving battle, eye-witness to the fact that the German air force is setting a tornado pace, with highly-geared German armies sweeping across Belgium and France towards England.

"On to Paris! On to London!"

Those are the German watchwords as thousands of grayclad soldiers, afoot and mounted on modern engines of war, pour westward in endless streams.

My few hours at the front already has shown me that the airplane has become as indispensable as the tank among the newest, highly modernized weapons of conflict.

Whatever Hitler's plans may be, to a non-combatant observer it is evident that something tantamount to a race for Paris among the German right and left wings and center has developed.

This has happened despite the efforts of German military quarters to hold in check any undue enthusiasm.

The German command has adopted this attitude on the assumption that appointment of General Maxime Weygand as Allied commander-in-chief foreshadows a rapid hardening of French resistance, with the likelihood of imminent desperate counter-attacks from central France.

As far as I can see, Hitler already has anticipated everything and is prepared to meet any development with the aim of inflict-

This map shows details of the titanic battle line, stretching from the Meuse river near Verdun, France, to the North sea, where Allies and Germans are locked in a struggle which already has become the world's greatest battle in scope and number of men involved. The French claimed today to have stopped the Nazi advance on Paris, but dispatches indicated the British force, to the north, was giving way before German pressure. Bottom picture shows General Maxim Weygand, new commander-in-chief of all Allied forces. He replaced General Gamelin.

OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR WAR RELIEF

Red Cross Workers Seeking $6,000 in County, Set Quota For Mansfield at $4,000.

The Richland county chapter of the American Red Cross today opens a drive to raise $6,000, its share of the $10,000,000 national war-relief fund for the aid of civilians in war-torn Europe.

Under the leadership of D. O. Meese and Paul M. Eliot, 22 persons, serving as a general war relief committee for the duration of the conflict, set out to obtain $4,000 in Mansfield. Shelby's quota has been set at $1,350 while the balance of the county will be asked to raise $650.

First to respond, Meese said, was Sharon township which guaranteed its quota by Friday -hortly after the call for funds was issued.

It was explained that no portion of the funds raised would be used for administration, all expenses in connection with the drive being met by local chapter funds, with the result that 100 per cent of all donations are used for relief.

Meese explained that in the event persons have relatives in foreign countries, it is possible for the donor to designate at the time the gift is made, the country where the money is to be sent.

The drive for the relief funds has no connection with the annual fall Roll Call that is conducted each year, but is a special call for funds — the first made by the American Red Cross for war purposes since the World war.

ACT UPHELD

Supreme Court Rules Guffey Coal Bill Constitutional.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The United States supreme court today upheld constitutionality of the New Deal's Guffey act to regulate the bituminous coal industry. The decision was 8 to 1.

It was handed down on the appeal of the Sunshine Anthracite company of Arkansas which, the national bituminous coal commission had held, mined bituminous coal.

It was the second decision of the high court on the constitutional issue. The original Guffey act was held invalid on May 18, 1936, in a 5 to 4 decision, before New Deal appointees ascended the bench. A revised act was then passed.

Justice Douglas delivered the court's opinion. Justice McReynolds alone dissented.

City Escapes Traffic Toll And Damage From High Winds

Violent wind and rainstorms that combined with traffic accidents and drownings to take 16 lives in Ohio over the week-end left only minor property damage and two persons slightly injured in traffic in Richland county.

Striking shortly after noon from the west, the storms swept across northern Ohio, causing major damage in the Cleveland, Akron and Canton areas.

Tree branches and sign boards were blown down in Mansfield where the wind velocity reached 45 miles an hour, but no one was reported injured. About a quarter of an inch of rain fell during the storm here.

At Akron where a 70-mile wind was reported, a portable school and other buildings were damaged and six persons were rescued from West Akron reservoir after canoes capsized.

Extensive damage was reported in Cleveland and suburban Parma where wind toppled chimneys and unroofed buildings and lightning struck several homes.

More than a dozen persons were injured in the Cleveland area and property damage was estimated at

OK'S VOTE TODAY

Election Board to Make Final Check on Official Count.

The county board of elections was scheduled to meet late this afternoon to approve the official count of votes cast in Tuesday's primary.

Almost ready at noon today, the count is not expected to change the outcome of any county contests, and no error was found in the first tabulation of votes in the close race for the Republican nomination for sheriff in which Ralph Schad, jr., led by 37 votes.

The official count must be ready to submit to the secretary of state by tonight to keep within the five-day deadline after election.

A 27-vote error in the tabulation of votes cast for William F. Hurley, Lorain, one of the Democratic nominees for state senator in the 27th-29 district, was the largest found.

ITALY READY TO ENTER WAR AT ANY TIME

Ciano Says Nation Prepared as Soon as Mussolini Gives "the Word."

(By United Press)

ROME — Italy was believed ready today to enter the war on short notice.

Fascist leaders, presumably with Benito Mussolini's approval, warned the nation to prepare for war and it was reported that Mussolini had turned down flatly President Roosevelt's appeal for peace.

Some quarters said he was playing his "moral" part in the conflict by keeping the Allies' diverted to an ever-increasing danger in southeastern Europe.

Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, the foreign minister, in a speech at Milan yesterday said that the nation was ready for war as soon as Mussolini gave "the word." Other Fascist leaders previously had asserted that Italy was on the road to war; and there had been numerous demonstrations against the "starving" blockade of Great Britain and France.

Speaking in Milan on the occasion of the first anniversary of the signing of the Rome-Berlin axis agreement, Ciano said:

"United in spirit and faith, the Italian people are getting ready to meet a new task to which they may be called. Maybe you know better than I do what this task is. But it is inspired by the defense of our rights as a sovereign state on land, sea and in the air and by the necessity of finally achieving our aspirations which are natural because they are just and indispensible to the life of a nation which is dictated by the necessity of maintaining the high and unsullied prestige of Italy.

"This great Fascist nation intends to keep faith with her obligations and together with these for an ever greater destiny."

Ciano's reference to Italy's keeping her obligations was taken as an indication that Mussolini would stand by his end of the Rome-Berlin agreement, which not only called for cultural and economic collaboration, but also mutual military aid in case either nation needed or asked for it.

Scientists Hear Of 'Volcano Girl;' —She's Red-Head

CINCINNATI — (AP) — A red-headed "volcano" girl who regularly runs a temperature of 112 degrees was described today before the American Psychiatric association.

The temperature is believed to be the highest yet recorded in a human being and according to previous medical belief she should die.

However, Dr. Esther B. Rietz of the Longview State hospital, Cincinnati, says the girl is normally healthy and happy.

The regular attacks resemble the common conception of the rages of a red head. The girl becomes violent but a few hours later is calm and smiling. Her trouble, Dr. Rietz explained, is epilepsy of the pituitary gland, the "master" gland which controls the activity of all other ductless glands of the body.

Wave of Confidence Sweeps Allies by Appointment of General Weygand As Commander-in-Chief; Nazis Expect Enemy Movement

(By International News Service)

The German legions swarmed on toward the channel ports today cascading in relentless waves from the bases they have created in the lowlands.

The northwestward drive spiked for the moment the onslaught on Paris, but it did not swerve the Nazi legions who turned their grim faces on the French capital. With unabated velocity fighting still rages on the border of France but the principal impact of the German drive is shoving toward the channel.

Appointment of General Maxime Weygand as Allied commander-in-chief brought a wave of confidence to the Allies, at which Berlin scoffed. An official German spokesman said the Nazi government looked on him "as an old man." Nevertheless, high military circles in Berlin predicted General Weygand would unleash a furious counter-assault on the invading Nazis and convert "the great battle of all time" into a war of movement from the Allied standpoint.

In London, a military spokesman said the morale of Allied soldiers had surged upwards but added the military situation remains "undoubtedly rather grim."

In Paris, H. R. Knickerbocker, ace International News Service war correspondent, reported two distinct points of advantage from the Allied side. First, Knickerbocker reported, the German drive is simmering down although still continuing. Second, the Allies are learning to combat Nazi tactics of fighting with tank-and-plane drives.

The sheer terror produced by the formidable waves of bombing planes followed by the deafening steel advance of tanks and infantry was responsible for first German advances, Knickerbocker said, reflecting observations of neutral military analysts.

In the air, the Allies claimed success in slashing reconnaissance flights—disrupting communication lines and blasting supply bases.

At home, Britain moved to buttress her defenses against attack, and the government issued an order prohibiting all aliens from possessing firearms or any kind of ammunition.

In France, the fighting was heaviest in the St. Quentin region and near Rethel where the Allies claim to have hurled back the German advance and thus dented the German "bulge."

A French communique said the Allied troops were fighting "vigorously" north of St. Quentin to check the Nazi drive and that near Bethel German forces which crossed the Aisne river had been thrown back during the night.

German attacks around Montmedy also were repulsed, the French communique announced.

At the same time the Allies strengthened their "front" in Belgium, according to a military spokesman in Paris, evidently in preparation for a major counter-offensive.

A dramatic description of the fighting came from Pierre

REJECTED: Swedes Turn Down Nazi Troop Passage Demands

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM—(By Telephone to New York)—Sweden has rejected German demands for permission to ship materials and men across Sweden for the relief of the besieged and weakening German garrison at Narvik, Norway, unimpeachable sources said today.

Negotiations continued. But the present situation, informants said, was that the demands had been made and rejected and that Sweden had said she would fight against any violation of her neutrality from whatever direction.

Adolf Hitler was reported to be determined that the Narvik garrison should not be captured or wiped out, and that it should not weaken German prestige by retreating across the Norwegian frontier into Sweden.

It was said that a German force had been concentrated for landing on the Swedish gulf of Bothnia coast, and was ready to move at Hitler's order.

Two reasons were given why the order, believed in some quarters to be imminent, had been withheld: 1. Hitler's pre-occupation with the Nazi blitzkrieg on the Western front. 2. The thought that an open attack on Sweden might bring Finland and Russia to her aid.

But a United Press informant represented Hitler to be getting more anxious over the Narvik situation and it was believed in some quarters that he might force the issue, by a final peremptory demand or by action, at any time.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

SYNOPSIS: Madge Graham's royal guest, exiled Princess Olina, of Transvania, is playing the harp in the Graham Sag Harbor farmhouse library before the members of the cast of Madge's play assembled there by Philip Veritzen, famous impresario, for the first complete rehearsal. Madge can't help but admire Olina's beauty and talent despite the fact that the princess has been far too attentive in the past to Noel Veritzen, husband of Madge's niece, Mary, who is cast for the heroine's role in the play. And when Mary herself rushes over to Olina at the end of the solo with completely sincere compliments climaxed with a request that Olina play again some time when Noel can hear her Madge finds herself waiting breathlessly for Olina's answer to Mary's graceful tribute.

* * *

Olina's rigid training held, enabling her to conceal the emotions which had swept her at Mary's unexpected and enthusiastic tribute to her harp solo. I told myself that even her mother, her "best friend and severest critic," would have approved the graceful and apparently sincere gratitude with which she answered Mary.

"Dear Mary!" she apostrophized my beautiful niece, "what lovely things you are saying! Nice things which, I am afraid, are utterly undeserved. But there are very sweet to hear, and I am so grateful. Thank you so much."

The other members of the cast, crowding around Olina in effusive praise, enabled Mary to step back gracefully. I saw her father-in-law's eyes fixed upon her with a queer, appraising expression, and I fervently hoped that she had been able to banish the tortured look from her eyes. For to me Philip Veritzen's eyes held the cold, studious expression of a vivisectionist, and I knew that Mary's emotions, as far as he was concerned, were written in large, legible characters.

His eyes swept round to mine so quickly that I was sure he had caught me watching him, especially when an infinitesimal smile touched the corners of his lips. Then, in a trice, he was again the professional martinet in charge of a troupe of players.

"If you are all ready," he said, and though the words were deferential, the tone was like the flecking of a whip, "we will get on with the rehearsal. First, however, there is the matter of fitting in the incidental music. Mrs. Graham, will you please refresh my memory? What players have lines with Miss Veritzen?"

"Mrs. Veritzen, Miss Carew, and Mr. Redfield," I answered promptly, naming the old character actress and the leading man.

"Very well," he answered, "if you will kindly place those players in the positions they will occupy during that particular colloquy, we will take that bit of business up first. Miss Olina, will you please take your position at the harp?"

"I am sorry to be troublesome," I said with plenty of saccharine in my accents, "but if that bit is rehearsed, it must be in private with only the actors concerned present. As I have told you before, I cannot permit my pupil to have any distractions before this rehearsal."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, May 21.

The many signs of mixed influences dominating this day's astrological map are indicative for several conflicting and confusing situations of major importance and portent. There is likely to be a swift and unexpected upheaval of the affairs, with unpredictable denouements. Business and employment are under crises that require much tact, shrewdness and compromise.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to be met with a year of sudden and surprising adventure, with much commotion, swift action of unforeseen nature, and probably a drastic reversal of fortunes, unless much sagacity, tact and calm deliberation be exercised.

A child born on this day may have a rather unusual character, shrewd, resourceful, persistent, yet changeable and erratic at times. With exalted aims it should be successful.

Beans do not require as much fertility as the leafy crops, such as lettuce spinach and celery. Too much nitrogen tends to produce an excessive growth of stalk. Manure, or a complete fertilizer, is most desirable.

Garden Graph

HOW TO "HEAD-UP" LETTUCE

Make use of a shaded portion of the vegetable garden by growing lettuce in it. Since lettuce does not stand heat well, it will do better in that portion of the garden which is at least semi-shaded.

Transplanting is a first step towards "heading-up" lettuce. The soil into which lettuce is to be transplanted should be "puddled" thoroughly beforehand. When the plant has been set in the "puddled" soil, firm the earth about it, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, in order to eliminate air pockets, and because lettuce roots grow better when in firm contact with the soil. For two or three days after transplanting the lettuce it must be shaded from the sun. Remember, too, that in order to "head-up" properly lettuce must have quantities of water.

Lettuce which grows slowly is usually tough, and the faster it can be made to grow the more tender it will be when harvested. Applications of nitrate of soda can be used to stimulate the growth of lettuce.

When using salt or a strong weed killer along drives and walks, be careful to keep it away from sections near the roots of trees, shrubs and evergreens.

Sardines Offer Variety

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

A can of sardines on the emergency shelf is the key to the problem of catering for the unexpected guest or satisfying a desire for an extra snack.

Copenhagen Spread is easily made. Rub mixing bowl with cut side of garlic clove. Then add one three-ounce can sardines. Mix to a paste with a tablespoon prepared mustard and lemon juice to taste. Spread on toasted crackers, sprinkle lightly with grated cheese and brown in hot oven. For another delicacy, put together through the meat grinder one can smoked sardines, two medium-sized pickled beets, one dill pickle, one tart apple and one cold boiled potato. Mix well and shape into small balls. Roll a few salty pretzels into crumbs and cover balls with crumbs. Chill.

For another appealing appetizer chop chives very fine and mix with one-half cup cottage cheese softened with a little mayonnaise. Spread thickly on toasted crackers or toast fingers. Press a sardine deep into each and dust with paprika.

Three sardines well mixed with a package cream cheese, one-half teaspoon onion juice and a tablespoon minced pimiento or stuffed olive makes a good stuffing for celery stalks.

Norse Grill is a filling snack. Spread hot toasted slices of rye bread with butter and prepared mustard. Top with a slice of Swiss cheese or snappy American cheese. Arranged smoked sardines on the cheese. Season with a sprinkling of vingar and pepper. Grill until cheese begins to melt and sardines show little crackly curls of skin.

Eggs Saga is a pleasant kitchen story. Cut six hard-boiled eggs into slices. Make one cup of rich cream sauce. Open a three-ounce can of sardines. Arrange slices of egg and sardines in alternate layers in buttered baking dish, covering each layer with a portion of the cream sauce. Top with buttered crumbs and bake in 350 degrees F. oven for 30 minutes.

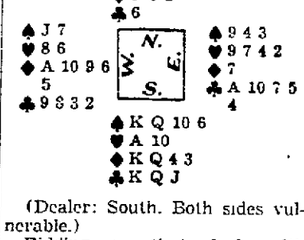
"The Authority on Authorities"

A NEW CONVENTION

Many players, who found the Blackwood convention helpful in slam bidding, also have discovered its principal defect—it sometimes crowds the bidding too high. On some occasions is results in a sign-off at a contract of five-odd, which is defeated because of ghastly luck in the distribution of the opponents' cards whereas four-odd would have been safe. At other times it pushes the level so high that only aces may be located and the bidder has to guess at the kings held by the side.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

Bidding on that deal, with North-South using the Blackwood convention and the opponents not calling, would be thus:

South	1 ♠	1 ♠	4 NT	5 ♠
North	1 ♥	3 ♠	5 ♦

Or perhaps South would start with 1-Spade, North would jump to 3-Spades and then would come the Blackwood convention, landing the side in 5-Spades. South, of course, would not go to six when he learned his partner had only one ace. West should naturally lead his A and another diamond, which East would ruff. The club A then would set the contract—very tough luck.

Horace M. Byrnes, of Harrisburg, Pa., has developed a change in the convention whereby 4-Clubs becomes the asking bid instead of 4-No Trumps. In reply, 4-Diamonds shows no aces, 4-Hearts one, 4-Spades two, 4-No Trumps three, and 5-Clubs four. The 4-Club bidder asks about kings by using 4-No Trumps over lower responses, 5-No Trumps over those which are too high for 4-No Trumps. By this method, the hand shown would be signed off at 4-Spades. A call of 4-Clubs would ask about aces, response of 4-Hearts would show one, and 4-Spades would be the final call. It would be made in spite of the opponents' crazy distribution.

Tomorrow we will present the very latest way of extending the idea presented by Mr. Byrnes, in what we consider the best convention of the kind yet devised.

Mother's Methods All Wrong

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

"DEAR DR. MYERS: I have a very serious and grave problem before me in the matter of training my children. An ex-school teacher, a lover of children and of child-training, I have had very little difficulty with my family of eight bright, healthy boys and girls, all at school but one baby. My heart is breaking as I tell you I have found deceit and dishonesty in my family.

"I have never punished a child when he admitted wrong-doing. I have so much emphasized the truth that this comes as an awful shock to me.

"Six years ago we had perhaps the best business in town, but lost it, and had to cut down in our living. The children were always fed, but perhaps they were hungry for the little extras we were used to . . ."

Then she tells of the neighbor who informed her that one of her boys had bought bananas and had them charged to this neighbor; that another neighbor woman reported another boy who took a bottle of pop from the kitchen as he was delivering a message. "He denied it before her, but she was so sure I took down a strap and then he admitted it. I was sick all night. He had also charged groceries and used the money for candy. Then came a carnival or child's fair. I missed change constantly from my purse (which I leave around purposely), and one night this child didn't come home till 11 o'clock—a child of 11. We were all frantic and found he had been spending freely and enjoying himself. It was three weeks before he admitted taking my money . . .

Can't Resist Pantry.

" . . . The whole family seems to lack resistance around the pantry. I simply can't keep a cake or pie, and with so many I never get the culprit. And how I grieve over it. I am not sure of any of them. They'll all steal from the pantry, and I've even left a cake in the middle of the table and dared them to touch it. It would be touched all right and I'd never find out—not even a blush."

Then she states that the father often interferes when she checks on the stealing by those children "and says before them, 'Well, didn't you steal cookies when you were their age?'"

You and I cannot honestly question this mother's motives. Few, perhaps, are more conscientious than she is. Only the methods she employed would we challenge.

Like thousands of other conscientious mothers, she vainly puts her trust in the child's forced confession to make him true and honest. She would even expose her boys to temptations to steal when she well knew they could not withstand them, in order, as she hoped, to exercise them in admitting their guilt.

Shift Her Methods.

As kindly and sympathetically as I could, I wrote this mother, begging her to shift her methods, and not only to cease to tempt her children but, on the contrary, to save them from as many temptations as possible. Temptations to which one falls always weaken one's will power. Only as one is able to resist victoriously is one strengthened of having been tempted.

Avoid Confession.

I begged her, moreover, to quit trying to force her children to confess and to put them on the witness stand never again but, instead, to try to make each feel himself a worthy, well-loved member of the family whose name he wishes to enjoy and uphold.

What could I add about her husband except words of sympathy? She hardly can hope to change him much save by means very indirect.

AVIATION NEWS—

NEW MILESTONE ATTAINED IN AVIATION HERE

Harrington Made Inspector For CAA; Flight School Gets U. S. Rating.

Two new milestones were reached in Mansfield aviation last week by the appointment of a local Civic Aeronautics Authority inspector for the north-central Ohio district and approval of the government of the Harrington Air service as an accredited flight school.

James R. "Bud" Harrington, who manages the municipal airport as a hobby, was appointed inspector for the CAA for the north-central part of Ohio. The appointment came from Washington.

This gives Harrington the authority to grant private licenses to flying students who apply to him for examinations.

Heretofore an inspector from Cleveland has had to come here to give examinations with the result that very frequently because the weather has not been what it should have been, pilots have had to wait from 30 to 90 days until he returned to pass the tests.

Incidentally four district pilots passed their written tests for private licenses before an inspector who was here from Cleveland but there was only a 1,000-foot ceiling and they were unable to get into the air to take their flight tests.

For a private license, the flier must go up at least 3,000 feet to execute some of the spins that are necessary in the exams.

This group, which includes G. A. Berting, sales manager of the North Electric company at Galion; D. M. Kiser of Ashland, and William Kick and Charles Silsby, both of Mansfield, will be the first to be flight tested by Harrington under his new authority. The weather right they are expected to take the exams some time this week.

* * *

W. W. Jarrell, the CAA's head man at Cleveland was also at the port last week and examined Harrington's flying facilities and service with the result that papers are now in Washington calling for approval of the school under government specifications.

Jarrell verbally put his okay on the application and it is expected to be a matter of a few days until official notification comes out of Washington.

A stiff wind kept pilots grounded at the port yesterday and caused a Pittsburgh pilot to turn back after four attempts to land.

While James M. Hill, president of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company waited, the Lockheed twin-engined airliner carrying Henry L. Roemer, chairman of the board of directors and his family circled the field and four times dropped low for a landing.

The big skyliner, heading into the east-west runway apparently considered the space too short for a landing and headed back east.

Word comes from Randolph Field, Texas—the "West Point" of the U. S. army air corps that William C. Odell, son of Emery A. Odell, 320 West Third street, graduated the past week and received his commission of second lieutenant in the air service. He has not yet received his assignment.

Bill was among the 13 of a class of 250 cadets who passed the final examinations in the stiff government flying school.

New students enrolled at the airport for pilot instruction this week included Robert Yeager, Mt. Vernon; Wayne Taylor, Robert Darling and Jack Gatton, all of Mansfield.

PATENT OFFICE DRAWS A LIMIT

You Can Patent Plants But Not Animals Which Eat Them.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—There's discrimination somewhere—Uncle Sam will patent plants but he won't patent animals.

An aspiring Burbank who crossbreeds a new sweetpea or a species of sugar cane that gives better molasses can cash in on the fruits of his labor. But the livestock breeder who crossbreeds animals and eventually stabilizes a new breed—such as milking Shorthorn cattle, the Boston bull terrier—is out of luck.

The reason? Nobody ever tried to patent an animal. Horticulturists got congress to pass the plant patent law. Livestock breeders just don't seem to care. So, as matters stand, a new forage grass can get in the patent office register—but the cow that eats it can't.

LONG HOLIDAY

Death Omits Oregon Coast Town for Over 15 Months.

REEDSPORT, Ore.—Until a 79-year-old pioneer succumbed early this month, it began to look as though death was on a holiday in the southwestern Oregon coast town.

From December 6, 1938, until March 11, 1940, the town's undertaker looked vainly among his 1,800 neighbors for business. A man can't live on only one funeral in a year and a half.

The town's two physicians, Drs. H. C. Eastland and R. H. Fields, and the Oregon State Health department said a combination of good luck, caution and "salubrious surroundings" was responsible for the low death rate.

Normally, about 12 persons in every 1,000 die each year in Oregon. This compares with 10.7 persons per 1,000 throughout the nation.

OBLIGING CHAP

Weather Man Tells Mothers When Galoshes Are Needed.

PUEBLO, Colo. —(AP)— It's an obliging weatherman that Pueblo has. Mothers consult him whether their children need galoshes. Fishermen call him up for advice.

But he tells proudly of the housewife who rang him recently. "Is it safe to paint the outside of my house?" she inquired. "I wouldn't," said the weather forecaster. "There'll be dust. It's going to blow." It did.

War Casts Mystery On Republican Presidential Choice

SELECTION OF F.D.R. ASSURED BY DEMOCRATS

President Has Enough Votes For Nomination; Dewey Chances Dimmed.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — With President Roosevelt already assured of a third term nomination, should he desire it, the second world war today appears to have cast new mystery around the identity of the Republican presidential nominee for 1940.

Democrats, including anti-third termers, generally concede that Hitler's "blitzkrieg" against the Allies has made the president's nomination and acceptance inevitable. Republicans, just as generally, assert that the rapid change of war conditions in Europe prevents them from forecasting the identity of the Republican nominee.

The president now has 601 delegates, far more than enough for his nomination. This total includes Alabama's 22, nominally pledged to Speaker Bankhead; Indiana's 28, nominally pledged to Security Administrator McNutt, and Wyoming's 6, nominally given to Sen. O'Mahoney.

Mr. Roosevelt will pick up more delegates this week, being assured of 32 in New Jersey's primary and 6 in Delaware's convention tomorrow. Utah Democrats will give him 8 more Thursday. Rhode Island Democrats will pledge him 8 more Friday, while Washington's 16 will go to him Saturday. The only break may come in Montana tomorrow where Sen. Burton K Wheeler is likely to get his home state's 8 delegates.

The Republican picture is highly fogged. Sen. Robert A. Taft (Ohio), and New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey continue to pick up delegates and lead the GOP field. Neither seems likely to have a first-ballot majority by the time the convention assembles in Philadelphia June 24.

There have been two distinct Republican reactions since Hitler launched his "blitzkrieg" through the low countries. The first seems to be a slowing down of the Dewey campaign that at one time seemed likely to sweep him into a first ballot nomination.

Veteran Republicans intimate that Dewey's youth will handicap him at Philadelphia, now that Mr. Roosevelt is expected to be the Democratic nominee on a platform revolving around the war in Europe.

Second, there is more Republican talk about a "dark horse" nominee to oppose Mr. Roosevelt. In this connection, there is revived talk about Sen. Arthur H. Vanderberg, whose campaign slogan is "not one cent—not one man—for war in Europe."

Taft Expected to Outline Views on Foreign Situation

ST. LOUIS —(U.P.)— Sen. Robert A. Taft, Republican presidential aspirant, swinging through the middlewest on a pre-convention tour, was expected to outline his views on foreign affairs in an address before a Republican rally here tonight.

With the disclosure that the address will be devoted entirely to foreign policy, it was anticipated that the speech would take into consideration factors thrown into the foreground by the intensification of the European war.

Taft came here after a two-day visit in Topeko, Kan., where he interviewed party leaders and delegates from several states and talked with former Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican presidential nominee in 1936.

The senator declined to discuss in detail his conversations with Landon. Landon said he would not indicate a preference for any of the candidates for the presidential nomination before the Republican convention in Philadelphia.

"I am sure Senator Taft made a splendid impression during his visit as have other candidates who have visited our state," he remarked.

Water Famine Caused By California Quake

Up and Down THE STREET

That amateur boxing show at the Friendly House last Friday night came in for a bit of unjustified criticism, it developed today, from an elderly fight fan. Asked by a friend how he liked the bouts, the fan replied "it was a good card, but I never saw so many teeth knocked out." He had mistaken mouthpieces for teeth. At least three boxers discarded their mouthpieces when the going got hot.

The warm showers over the week-end brought the mushrooms out by the thousands and Mansfielders reaped a big harvest. The biggest "take" was reported by C. S. Cole, 44 Dudley avenue, and Lester Kirk, 358½ West Sixth street, who found 481 mushrooms in about four hours Saturday on the hillside east of the city. On display at the Goetz Hardware company is a cluster of 25 mushrooms, grown together in a plot of ground measuring one foot across, and found by Tom Lutz, 357 South Diamond street, last night near Newville. He also found another bunch of 18 mushrooms growing together.

County Superintendent Boyd Robinson was glad today that he signed the 500 diplomas for county graduates before the superintendents' picnic Saturday. While playing kittenball at the outing at the Devil's Punchbowl Robinson jammed one of the fingers on his right hand and he was hardly able to hold a pen today. Signing the stack of diplomas is a big enough job any time, even when he's in good condition, the superintendent said.

Capt. T. M. Bell, veteran Mansfield police officer today was observing his 31st anniversary as a member of the police department. Turning in a record of continuous service unequalled in the history of the force, the first shift commanding officer took the day off. He was in Cleveland visiting his daughter and expected to attend the Indian-Yankee baseball game.

$50,000. Three persons were hurt when their car was struck by a falling limb and a woman and her daughter suffered injuries when the wind forced their car off the road into a ditch near Bedford.

The wind blew a motorcyclist, Harold G. Green, 19, off the highway near Greenville, in Western Ohio, killing him. A hit-skip motorist killed Lewis Peugh, 57, at Mt. Vernon.

Three Ohioans were drowned. Russell Caster 23, in the Little Miami river at Cincinnati, Vance Taylor, 59, in the Mad river near Urbana, and Melvin Thomas, 3, in a watering trough near West Jefferson.

In Richland county two men suffered minor injuries in two traffic accidents. Murray Roser, 28, R. D. 4, Mansfield, was treated at General hospital for body cuts and bruises he received when the car he was driving ran into a truck at 2:45 a. m. Sunday on route 42 south of the city.

Thrown from his motorcycle after it went into a ditch along route 30-S near Ontario, Harley Flowers, Galion, was treated for cuts and bruises at General hospital.

The storm Sunday afternoon dropped the temperature in Mansfield from a high of 76 Sunday to 50 last night. Partly cloudy weather and probable showers were forecast for tonight and Tuesday. By noon today the mercury had climbed to 70 degrees.

90-YEAR-OLD MAN ACCUSED OF SLAYING WOMAN IN ARGUMENT

WAUSEON—(INS)— Accused of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Florrie Whitcomb, 32-year-old mother of three children, following an argument over a tombstone, 90-year-old Hiram Derby was held under close guard in a hospital today.

Deputy sheriffs found Derby, suffering from exhaustion, in a field a mile and a half from the scene of the shooting after a three and a half hour search.

They said Derby apparently had run until he dropped, and then crawled until he was exhausted. Sheriff Harley Loveland said he had admitted the shooting.

Coroner H. M. Warner, who conducted an immediate investigation, declared that Derby and Mrs. Whitcomb had been arguing about a marker for the grave of Mrs. Whitcomb's mother. Mrs. Whitcomb then ordered Derby from the house.

When she followed the aged man to the door, he turned and fired four shots at her, Warner said. Howard Whitcomb, the victim's husband and Derby's stepson, heard the reports, rushed from the house and seized the gun, whereupon Derby attacked him with a knife, Warner related.

Whitcomb took the knife away from Derby and then carried his dying wife into his home. Derby fled in the confusion that followed.

The shooting occurred at the Whitcomb farm, seven miles northeast of Wauseon, where Derby had been staying since he suffered an attack of influenza early this year. There had been several family quarrels since that time, according to Warner.

The coroner said his inquest would be delayed until Derby could be questioned.

FEAR SPREAD OF EPIDEMIC OVER DESERT

Officials Estimate Drinking Water Can Last Only Ten Days in Valley Cities.

(By United Press)

EL CENTRO, Cal. — A water famine and fears of an epidemic spread today through the Imperial valley, where an earthquake cracked the "life line" Alamo canal during the week ended.

The series of earth tremors began Saturday night and lasted until early Sunday. At least eight persons were killed. Property damage was estimated at millions of dollars. The desert was overrun by contaminated water spilled from broken mains and irrigation ditches.

Officials estimated that there was only enough drinking water to last 10 days. In Brawley, which almost was destroyed, the city council ordered that only water necessary to sustain life would be turned on for two hours a day. Water was scarce in Holtville and Imperial, where storage tanks were ripped apart. El Centro had enough water to last four days. A similar shortage was felt in Calexico and Mexicali because thousands of gallons had been used to put out a fire in the International hotel.

Loss of the Alamo canal would leave the Imperial valley an arid desert. Supplying communities on both the American and Mexican sides of the border, the canal carries water from the Colorado river to the valley, making it one of the richest agricultural areas in the United States. Five hundred feet of the canal and a flume on the Mexican side were destroyed and officials estimated that it would take about 10 days to repair the damage. In addition to the main break, several other breaks were discovered in lateral feeder lines.

Red Cross workers guarded against spread of disease. Supplies of typhoid vaccine were sent into the valley to inoculate residents tempted to use the contaminated water. Authorities warned everyone to boil all water before drinking it.

Extra policemen guarded against looting. Three already had been arrested on looting charges in Brawley. Business was at a standstill and schools were closed in all towns except Calexico. El Centro theaters were open only to "bolster morale." They did little business.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking for Myself.

I see that a Broadway nightspot is using a medical school apparatus, the "drunkometer," to determine whether or not various customers are drunk, and I am inclined to question not only the sincerity, but the necessity of this move.

It has been my observation that intoxication is very difficult to conceal. In fact, although I am of notably unscientific mind, I would venture myself to tell the proprietor whether a guest is stiff, as the Harvard boys say, simply by looking at his check.

I use the deductive method based on long observation in places where alcohol is sold. One drink: sober. Two drinks: not quite sober. Three drinks: woozy. Four drinks: woo-woo-woo-woozy. Five drinks: drunk.

Nothing delights me more than watching two Metropolitan sopranos rush up and greet each other. . . . All through the premiere performance of the Leigh-Olivier version of "Romeo and Juliet," I kept waiting for Vivien to forget she wasn't playing Scarlett O'Hara, and murmur: "Oh, Romeo, Romeo, wherefore art thou-all Romeo?" . . . I would like to know Garguantua socially. His withdrawn, remote, uncoiled viciousness fascinates me. . . . I think it is about time for the Brooklyn Dodgers to ask if Bill Terry is still in the league.

* * *

There was only one character in "The Time of Your Life" the Critics-Pulitzer prize play, that I would like to know in real life. . . . It wasn't a big part—just the role of the sad, beefy cop who didn't like the trouble his job mixed him up with. I liked the cop. He was like a lot of cops I met on assignments. . . . I love sidewalk cafes.

The gay Brevoort Supper club, with its tables flirting with the curbstones, looks like Paris. But I guess Paris doesn't look that way any more. . . .

* * *

I hate all this war talk. I'm frightened that the headlines and breakfast-table-morning-paper-conversations and night club speculation will ease the people into an acceptance of our entry into the war. . . .

Cafe business has taken a terrible drop since the market crashed the other day, and the slump in the midnight places may keep on, but the experts are saying we're in for a sudden on-rush of gaiety and prosperity in the night clubs, with the citizens running from one noisy place to another, drinking and laughing, just to shut out the sound of the war bulletins and the distant guns.

* * *

Funny that with all the European excitement, the newsreels should be so dull. . . . I wonder what Lois Andrew will be doing when she's 30. . . . Manhattan urchins are the most ingenious in the world, with a million and one ways to make a passerby part with a penny—they'll wipe his windshield, shine his shoes, sing, dance, or stage a fight on the sidewalk. . . .

Reminder of Holland: the crisp red and white tulips in the center of Park ave. . . . The local beauties have found a new way of getting sun-tanned. They go to baseball games in the afternoon and sit in the unsheltered parts of the stands. Adelaide Moffett is sunburned from watching Brooklyn. . . .

I love Jimmy McHugh's new song "Clear Out of the World." . . . Which reminds me that the other day I mentioned a lyric from "Cole Porter's" song, "The Lady Is a Tramp." Whatever became of Rodgers and Hart, Miss K? I guess it's the war.

* * *

I'm always intrigued by Mrs. Lawrence Tibbett's gold signet ring, which opens to reveal a picture of her husband. . . . He has one like it, filled with a picture of her. . . .

I'd like to make Tommy Manville an impromptu bet some evening that he can't name, offhand, every girl he's given a fur coat to. . . .

I wonder whatever became of the reporters around town who used to write their copy in longhand. . . . I always wish on stars and wishbones. . . . I giggled at that Hollywood columnist's subtle advance criticism the other day. He wrote "Joan Crawford, home from N. Y., will linger to preview 'Susan and God,' then take the first boat for Honolulu." Goodness, it couldn't be that bad.

* * *

I was thinking the other day how things happened to the cast of Ziegfeld's last "Follies," the one put on in 1931. All of them things more tragic than glamorous. Dorothy Dell, who sang, "Was I Drunk, Was He Handsome," in her first Broadway appearance after winning the title Miss Universe, went to Hollywood and was killed in an automobile accident. Ruth Etting went on to an unhappy denouement of her marriage, a page one triangle, and involvement in an attempted murder. Hope Dare, who was Ziegfeld's favorite Glorified redhead, got mixed up with the mob and wound up the wife of a disbarred lawyer, the nortorious Dixie Davis.

* * *

The Dorsey brothers war will be on again soon, with Jimmy playing at the Pennsylvania's Cafe Rouge and Tommy opening at the Astor Roof. They're both good bands, but Tommy plays the music best for me. . . . I've never shucked (or husked?) corn, pitched hay, or milked a cow.

I like auto races best of all races, horse races next. A yacht race is something I can watch for no longer than 10 minutes, and then only because it looks so beautiful, not because it's really a race. . . .

I would like to meet the mother of an autograph hound and find out how the kid gets permission to stay out all day and all night—or as late as the most night-owlish movie star stays up—with no more excuse than a bored signature scrawled in an album.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — "My Favorite Wife." Screenplay by Bella and Sam Spewack. Directed by Garson Kanin. Principals: Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick, Ann Shoemaker, Scotty Beckett, Mary Lou Harrington, Donald MacBride, Hugh O'Connell, Granville Bates, Pedro de Cordoba.

* * * * *

There may be funnier pictures made this year, but the signs are not favorable. "My Favorite Wife" has a quality that keeps an audience alternately chuckling, smiling and roaring, with no let-downs in between.

The success should not be surprising. Leo McCarey, the producer here, directed the co-stars in their former comedy click, "The Awful Truth." Kanin, the director, was behind Ginger Rogers' click in "Bachelor Mother." Dunne and Grant, even surer of their comedy tricks than in the former picture, have the support of a superlative cast and the benefit of a cleverly contrived script.

The story is the reverse angle on that of the current "Too Many Husbands." The wife has been shipwrecked, returns seven years later on the day of her husband's honeymoon. She takes a plane, arrives in San Francisco at the honeymoon hotel just as the newlyweds are going up to their suite.

There's complication here, however, where it was lacking in "Too Many Husbands." The spouse, loving his first wife and dreading to tell his second that the first is still alive, learns the castaway wife had a companion (Scott) on the shipwreck island, and puts her on the defensive.

When the story gets too paper thin, writing and direction and acting dress it up cleverly. The finale smacks of "The Awful Truth" in its boudoir problem, but it is accomplished even more amusingly here, with Grant's final appearance and line a smashing comedy surprise.

Top character in support is Bates' judge. Excellent, too, is MacBride's hotel clerk.

* * *

"Turnabout." Screenplay by Mickell Novak, Berne Giler, John McClain, Rian James, from novel by Thorne Smith. Directed by Hal Roach. Principals: Adolphe Menjou, Carole Landis, John Hubbard, William Gargan, Verree Teasdale, Mary Astor, Donald Meek, Joyce Compton, Inez Courtney, Franklin Pangborn, Maryone Main, Margaret Roach.

See this before you see "My Favorite Wife," and it may seem funnier than I think it is.

Mansfield Seeks Second Straight Victory at Fairground

Petersen Makes Pitching Debut Against Findlay

Youthful Southpaw Draws Starting Assignment Under Floodlights at 8:15 P. M. Today.

By CHARLES MARTIN

INSPIRED by the stellar pitching performance turned in by Bob Arnold against Findlay Saturday night, the Mansfield Braves will endeavor to register their second straight win over the Oilers under the arcs at 8:15 p. m. today at the Fairground.

Arnold beat Findlay, 5 to 2, Saturday night at the Fairground and the Braves had planned to make it two in a row at Findlay yesterday but rain forced postponement of the contest.

Fans will see Bob Petersen, tall southpaw, making his debut in a Braves uniform tonight. He was scheduled to pitch yesterday. Petersen joined the Braves Thursday, coming here from Flint, Mich., of the Michigan State league.

Only three games out of first place, Mansfield will be battling to whittle down the advantage and try to climb up the Ohio State league ladder.

The pace-making Lima Pandas offer the opposition for the Braves Tuesday and Wednesday and Manager Dewey Stover and his warriors will leave nothing unturned in an effort to overtake the leaders.

Mansfield invades Lima Tuesday night and returns to tackle the Pandas at the Fairground park Wednesday night.

George Laurila is Manager Stover's selection to handle the tossing assignment at Lima, but it is uncertain who will draw the starting mound job Wednesday.

* * *

If the Braves come through with flying colors tonight they will only be a game behind second-place Findlay. Mansfield is below the .500 per cent mark, but two successive triumphs will place it on that level.

* * *

In the other circuit contests tonight, Fostoria plays at Lima and Fremont goes to Tiffin.

Early season postponements has set up two Sunday doubleheaders for the Braves club officials announced today. June 16 Mansfield entertains Fostoria in a twin bill, and June 30 Fremont is scheduled for a pair of tussles at the Fairground.

The Lima-Fostoria and Tiffin-Fremont games were also postponed because of rain yesterday.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—His country could use a laugh or two right now, but apparently Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis doesn't feel that way about it.

* * *

From his throne room in Chicago he has put the damper on a movement, which, if allowed to flourish, might furnish even more merriment than the judge's own haircut.

* * *

I refer to the judge's sternness when he suspected Joe Dimaggio of having an agent whose duty it was to handle the financial affairs of the New York outfielder.

The judge was as tough as if he had been tipped off that Dimaggio spent his spare time raising poppies for opium purposes.

I won't waste any time speculating as the judge's right to pry into a ball player's private affairs.

Apparently the old gent has powers of an absolute monarch and can do anything to a ball player, including telling him how many minutes he can have his eggs boiled and what he can buy his kids for Christmas.

No official paper has ever been published outlining the scope of the Landis powers, but judging from his past performances they include such things as the control of the moon and tides, the butterfat content of Holstein cows, and the price of Nylon stockings.

But the judge shouldn't have turned thumbs down on ball players having agents. They have as much right to them as Hollywood actors, and what fun they'd bring into the game.

There'd be the matter of billing, for example. No agent worth his accent would let his baseball client take anything except top-billing in the line-up. Can't you just hear the agents of Gabby Hartnett and Ernie Lombardi and Bill Dickey insisting that their men be made lead-off hitters and not hidden way down in the lineup? They wouldn't listen to the argument that Gabby and Ernie and Bill were too slow to lead-off.

Agents would bring stand-ins to the game, too. Just as Gable has a relief man when cameras are being focused and scenes rehearsed, the agents of the baseball stars would demand that their charges be spelled during unimportant games.

* * *

When the Browns or Phillies or Bees or Athletics were the opposition, the stars would lounge on the bench and allow their understudies (minor league players or rookies) to play in their stead.

* * *

All of this would be a lot lighter to sit into a game that is growing entirely too serious. The average of baseball games these days is less a page out of Eugene O'Neill or Hendrik Ibsen. Stop going to baseball by slow stages. Keep playing a slow game in a slow manner.

Smith Faces New Yorkers At Cleveland

Veteran Southpaw Will Try For Second Victory Over Yankees.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Al Smith, veteran southpaw who defeated the Yankees at New York two weeks ago, gets another chance today to keep them off the Cleveland base walks and continue the Indian's string of five straight victories over the champions.

* * *

Bob Feller added the latest link in the string by letting the Yanks down with four hits to win Sunday's current series opener 5 to 1.

* * *

He and his teammates rapped the champ's ace, Charley Ruffing, for nine safeties. They took advantage of the veteran's unusual wildness to score two runs in the first inning. Three walks filled the bases and Ken Keltner singled.

Roy Weatherly doubled in the third inning, advanced on a sacrifice and then pulled a fast dash for home on a pop foul while Joe Gordon tried vainly to steady himself for a throw.

Rollie Hemsley singled in the eighth and Ray Mack tripled. Then Feller singled in the last Indian run.

* * *

Feller gave only one walk and that allowed the only New Yorker to get past second base. Tommy Henrich drew the walk in the seventh. Joe DiMaggio singled him to third and he scored on a fly.

* * *

Spurgeon Chandler, who has been delivering some of the Yanks' best pitching, has the call to oppose Al Smith and try to break the Tribal jinx. The Indians won their last two Yankee games last season and have won all of their three games so far this year.

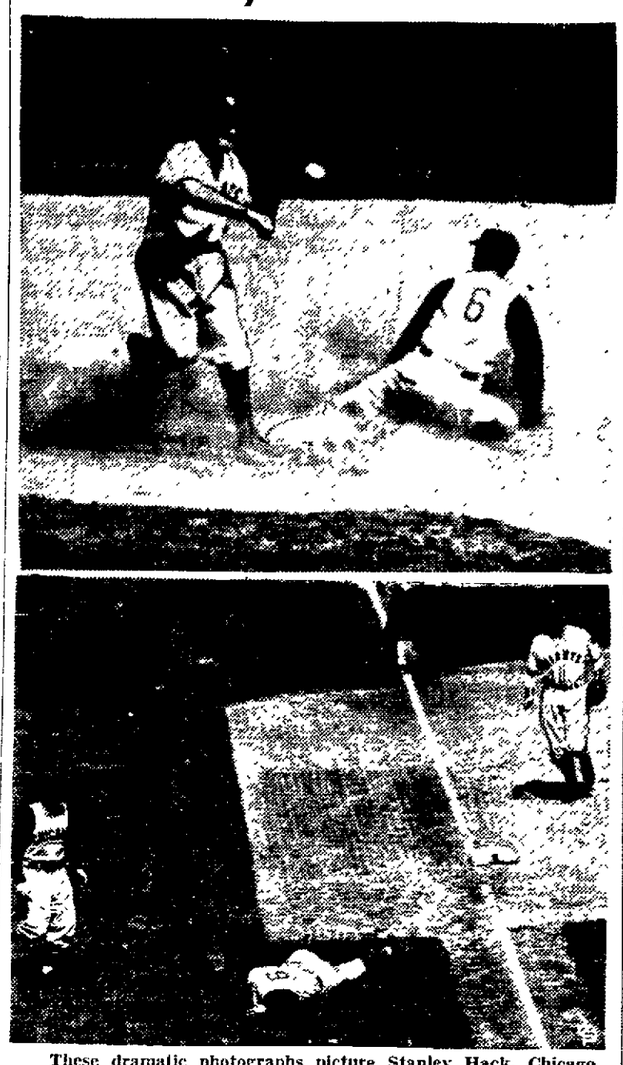
How Stanley Hack Was Hurt



These dramatic photographs picture Stanley Hack, Chicago Cubs' star third baseman, just before and just after he was struck by a foul, hit by Teammate Hank Lieber. In top view Hack reaches second base safely in game with New York Giants at Polo Grounds. On the next play he reached third base and took a big lead off that sack. Then he was struck. Lower photo, shows Hack on ground while teammates hurry to his aid. He was carried off the field.

Hoovler Shoots Ace At Westbrook Club

By GEORGE SATTLER

ONE more Mansfielder gained a seat in golfdom's hall of fame yesterday, when E. E. Hoovler, 600 Park avenue west, scored a hole-in-one on the Westbrook country club course.

* * *

Teeing off on the 15th hole with a number seven iron, Hoovler drove the green, where the ball took a few bounces and trickled into the cup. The 15th hole is 152 yards long.

* * *

Hoovler—playing in a foursome composed of W. R. Mull, H. P. Hosler, C. P. Eisenberger, and himself—shot an 82 for the 18 holes.

At the same time, two linksmen were turning in sub-par scores at the Possum Run links. Al Kushin wound up the 18 yesterday with a 69 and Frank Cipris with a 71. Kushin's 69 is the lowest card turned in at Possum Run this year.

* * *

Out at Coolridge, Bob Cole, Red Keck, and Joe Kasper paced the field. Cole had a 36, Red Keck a 36, and Joe Kasper a 35, 36, and 36. Kasper scored a birdie on the number 6 hole and an eagle on number 7, driving the green on both and sinking his puts for 2's.

* * *

Other top scores at Possum yesterday were: Joe Mayer, 74, Nick Linster, 74, and Pete Linster, 78; and at Coolridge, Steve Stirtzinger, 38, Whitey Mahalic, 37 and Pete Zimmerman, 37.

Hogan Among Prime Favorites In National Open Golf Race

NEW YORK—(AP)—The calibre of golf played by Ben Hogan in winning the Goodall round robin tournament the past week-end at fresh meadow is certain to place the dark Texan among the prime favorites both in the Metropolitan open this week and in the National open championship at Cleveland June 6 to 8.

* * *

The slight, young professional practically made a runaway of the Goodall, in which he played seven match rounds against 14 of the world's leading money players. He took the lead with a great 68 on his second round and never was headed, or even seriously threatened until right at the last.

* * *

The pressure was on him squarely, but he fought them all off and finished breezing along although he fell down a flight of steps the night the tournament opened and injured his left shoulder.

Despite his clippings, Ben will have to qualify for the open at Cleveland if he expects to play. He was terrible in last year's championship at Philadelphia, finishing nigh around the bottom.

Hogan completed the Goodall seven rounds with a total medal score of 491, only one stroke over par 70s. Sam Snead took second place and Gene Sarazen third.

TOLEDO UNIVERSITY WINS BIG FOUR TRACK MEET

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Six first places in 15 events, one tie for first, two second places and a 51½ point total entitle University of Toledo's thin-clads to the championship in the annual Big Four invitational track meet.

Baldwin-Wallace college, defending champion and most of suburban Berea Saturday, finished second with 42½ points. Other contestants placed as follows: Case 32, Western Reserve, 31½; Kent State, 20; Ashland, 18, Penn, 9, Hiram, 6, and Akron, 5½.

MANSFIELDERS IN MONEY

Lima won the inter-city bowling tournament which closed at Marion last week end. The championship trophy and money prizes were awarded the winner and runner-up teams at a meeting held in Marion Sunday. Mansfield teams which participated in the tourney received $211 of the $10,656 prize melons. Checks may be obtained at the Meder alleys tonight.

Wreckers Tally Their Fourth Win of Season

Bob Lapine Gives Up One Hit in Six Innings in Softball Tilt.

Their mound staff strengthened by the addition of Bob Lapine, crack Cleveland Class A hurler, the Mansfield Wrecking company softballers today sport an unblemished record of four consecutive triumphs.

* * *

With Lapine holding the opponents to one hit in six innings the Wreckers handed the Safety Cabs a 4 to 1 beating at North Lake park yesterday. Bob Shaffer relieved Lapine in the seventh and gave up one run in his three-inning job. The Cabs scored in the ninth.

Led by Rayburn, who pounded out a double and single, the Wreckers forged ahead, 1 to 0, in the fourth and put the game away with three markers in the last of the eighth.

Lapine, who joined the Wrecking team last week, made his debut. He was never in trouble and whiffed 10 without issuing a walk. Shaffer had trouble with his control and passed four men.

While Manager Nick Wagner's Wrecking company outfit was out in front most of the time it encountered trouble in solving the slants of Fisher, Cabs' moundsman.

* * *

Fisher gave the winners six hits. Dave Lapine was the second Wrecker player to secure a two-base hit. Smolen led the losers with a pair of singles, while Judy added a double.

Phils Register Fifth Straight Home Triumph

Once Collapsible Quaker City Players Are No Longer the "Phoolish Phils."

(By Associated Press)

STRANGER, you'd better smile when you say they're the "Phoolish Phillies" these days.

The once-collapsible Quaker city set in the National league refuses to roll over and play dead any more. Dog Prothro, the good dentist, yanked a couple of ailing "teeth" from his infield, put in a right nifty bridge as replacement, and, what with a fair set of young pitchers, his boys are really snapping at the opposition.

Now, this isn't to say the Phils are going to win the pennant. That's probably asking a little too much in one order. Besides the Cincinnati Reds, who boosted their league lead to a game and a half with an 8-4 win over the Boston Bees yesterday, may have something to say about that.

But the Phils have taken four of the five starts on their current home stand, topping it off with a 6-5 decision the "hard way" over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, and are way up in fifth place.

They pulled one out of the hat when Bennie Warren, a bench-warming catching hopeful, singled with the bases loaded in the ninth to whip the bungling Bucs. Earlier in the game, Chuck Klein hit his third homer in eight days.

The Chicago Cubs spotted the Brooklyn Dodgers five runs in a third inning rally, and then came on to win out 7-6 in the tenth on Rip Russell's homer with a mate aboard, thereby climbing back into third place in the National league standings. This game went from the sublime to the ridiculous and wound up with the Cubs using 19 players and Manager Gabby Hartnett playing first base.

* * *

The St. Louis Cardinals, after blowing a three-run lead, tied it up on Joe Orengo's eighth-inning homer against the New York Giants, and finished on top 6-5 in the tenth when Orengo came through with a single to shove the deciding run home. Johnny Mize hit his 12th homer of the season.

* * *

With all due respect to Cincinnati Bucky Walter's elbowing, the best tossing of the afternoon was provided by Cleveland's Bobby Feller at the expense of the New York Yankees. Master Bobby chalked up his fifth victory of the year's pitching a four-hitter for a 5-1 win over the woeful world champions.

The Chicago White Sox did their best to produce their first home victory of the season, but despite a five-run rally in the ninth, they wound up on the short end of a 12-10 count with Washington in a game marked by a half-a-dozen homers. Old Elden Auker was handed an eight-run edge in the first five innings, so it was no trick at all for him to pitch the St. Louis Brownies to a 10-4 victory over the Athletics.

LOANS

YOU CAN BORROW $100 IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $4.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, friendly service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.46 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for thirty months will also repay a $100 loan.

When you borrow at Household Finance, you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.26 each, or a total of only $105.04, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. (All payments shown in the table include the charges. You pay nothing more.)

One rate to everyone

Household charges only one rate—the same to everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

All you do to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is to acquaint us with your problem. We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives—and you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get the money you need in a simple, private transaction.

Fair Treatment

Household shows every consideration to the borrower faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Find the loan you need in the first column of the table and read across. See how you can repay your loan with a small part of your pay check. Then phone or visit us. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

Girl Cartoonist-Writer Says Sports Needs a Woman's Touch

* * * * *

By ROBERT MYERS

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Willowy Jeane Hofmann firmly believes that somewhere there is a steady job for the only girl sport writer-cartoonist in the country, and she's doing her best to find it.

* * *

Some six years ago Miss Hofmann, then a Los Angeles high school student, looked over the possibilities for women in journalism and chose one of the least crowded—sports. In fact, she couldn't discover a single girl in this field.

* * *

She started her career as the sports editor of her high school paper, although some of her young male rivals didn't like the idea very much.

Now she contributes a cartoon and story a week to the Hollywood Citizen-News, and until recently had a woman's page in a weekly sports magazine issued here. It folded up, much to Jeane's disappointment.

At one time she covered the Hollywood baseball club's fortunes in the Pacific Coast league for the Citizen-News, and discovered that baseball was one of her favorite sports. It still is, although ice hockey—"because it's faster and tougher"—is her top choice, but—

"I like all sports, although I'm strictly a spectator participant."

Does she run into much opposition from the hardier males in pursuing her career?

"Well, yes. Sometimes the boys at first seem to resent my presence in a press box, but after they get used to me everything is fine. The only real rebuff I ever got in trying to land a job was from a San Francisco sports editor. He told me—and I appreciated his frankness—that he wouldn't have a woman within two block of his department."

Jeane, just turned 21, visited the Chicago Cub baseball camp at Santa Catalina island this spring, and had a great time with Gabby Hartnett and his players. It was there she said, that she met her "most interesting sports personality."

His name? Dizzy Dean.

Tall, blonde, with eyes a little green, a little grey, Jeane displays marked talent in her drawings and gives her story material a distinct feminine touch.

"I think," she explains, "that since there are so many women who follow sports, they would be interested in the impressions, angles and views of a woman writer. I just know I'm right."

* * *

Miss Hofmann was born in Los Angeles, but her parents came from Savannah, Ga. Both are hoping she fulfills her ambitions, which are:

* * *

"To get a job and to be famous. I want to be famous most of all," concluded the only girl sports writer-cartoonist in the country.

Ball Clubs Try For 2nd Place

Stage Seven-Team Race for Next Best Division.

(By Associated Press)

It looks as if the American association is headed for a seven-club race—for second place.

* * *

The association campaign is scarcely a month old but the Kansas City Blues, defending champions, have a four and a half game lead. Minneapolis, in second place, is that far back of the Blues and only five contests ahead of the two cellar teams, Toledo and Columbus.

* * *

The Blues increased their first place bulge two complete games Sunday with a double header sweep over Minneapolis, 10-8 and 5-2.

The three other Sabbath twin bills were split.

Milwaukee, a half-game ahead of Indianapolis, defeated St. Paul, 4 to 1, then lost the second contest, 4 to 3.

* * *

Toledo, after losing a 4-3 decision to Indianapolis in the opener, clubbed out a 13 to 2 slaughter in the seven-inning second engagement.

* * *

After Columbus beat Louisville in the opener, 6 to 4, Yank Terry handcuffed the Red Birds with a two-hitter in seven innings, giving the Colonels a 2-0 victory.

BEHIND THE WHEEL AT INDIANAPOLIS

One of the newcomers to the ranks of 500-mile racers, Sam Hanks, 25, of Los Angeles, has just passed his driver's test to become eligible for the Indianapolis classic, May 30. Hanks is a newlywed, having married Jean Bradley of Los Angeles on his way to Indianapolis. He is a graduate of the midget and dirt track ranks.

ANNOUNCE PRIZES

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Purses at the season's opening harness meeting at the state fairgrounds May 30 to June 1 will range from $400 to $600, President O. C. Belt of the Columbus Trotting club announced today.

Walters Beats Boston Outfit For Sixth Win

Cincinnati Ace Gives Up 5 Hits as He Breezes To 8-4 Victory.

BOSTON—(AP)—They said before the season opened that Bucky Walters, the Reds' ace hurler, could not duplicate his record of 27 victories last year.

* * *

Maybe not, but the six-foot chucker voted the most valuable player in the National league in 1939 is on the right track. He allowed only five safeties yesterday in breezing through his sixth straight triumph of the year, letting the Bees down 8 to 4.

* * *

"I don't think I have reached my peak yet. I think I can win 30 games—maybe this season," the confident Walters asserted.

He retired seven men by strikeouts in the encounter with the Bees, the first of a three-game series. The victory, along with Brooklyn's defeat, gave the Reds a one and one-half game hold on top position in the National league.

* * *

Ernie Lombardi who clouted a three-run homer in the eighth for Cincinnati. The Reds collected four runs in the first four innings and four in the eighth.

* * *

Four Boston pitchers allowed 12 hits.

Junior Thompson, with five wins and one defeat, was called to the mound for Cincinnati today against Richard Errickson.

NORTHWESTERN FAVORED TO RETAIN GOLF CROWN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Despite the return of only one last year's letterman, Northwestern university entered the Western conference championship golf tournament on the Ohio State university course today favored to retain its title.

The Wildcats tuned up for the 72-hole medal play event in trimming both Ohio State and Minnesota over the host school's new 36-hole course Saturday.

AIRCRAFTS AND STEELS LEADING UPWARD SWING

Early Recovery Trend Today Traced to Belief That Market's 'Oversold.'

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK -Stocks swung upward behind steels and aircrafts in today's market.

Prominent on the mutual swing were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Boeing, Glenn Martin, Lockheed, Allied Chemical, American Can, Du Pont, Anaconda and Montgomery Ward.

The early recovery trend was attributed partly to the belief of some traders the market was "oversold" and partly to the feeling the news from French battle fronts might soon become more cheerful.

Bonds were mixed, along with commodities. With grain futures pegged at Chicago and other important markets, the staples picture was a bit cloudy. Cotton, though, rallied briskly. "Free" sterling and the French franc firmed.

Notice was taken of the survey of the Magazine "Steel" which said "a sharp increase in export demand, accompanying the changed status of the European war, overshadows domestic steel buying, although the latter is increasing more rapidly."

Congress Veteran Warns Billions Needed for Defense

SAYS PRESENT PROGRAM ONLY 'A BEGINNING'

Rep. Taylor Predicts Nazis Will Take Greenland If Germany Wins War.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Rep. Edward Taylor (D) Colo., chairman of the powerful house appropriations committee, said today that President Roosevelt's $3,131,000,000 defense program is "only a beginning."

"If we are going to be prepared to defend the western hemisphere we must spend billions," said the 82-year-old congressional veteran.

Taylor predicted that future defense plans would include a two-ocean navy, conversion of the Panama Canal from a lock to a sea-level canal, and construction of a Nicaraguan sea-level canal.

"I am 82 years old and the doctor tells me I must not make a lengthy speech, said Taylor. "If I were younger I would tell the house the situation we face. I have been in congress 32 years and know something about the subject.

"If Germany wins she will take Greenland and islands in the Caribbean. Germany is not going to wait for us to arm. She will join with Russia, Italy, and Japan. If they decide to move on us they will first invade South America. There is not a South American country that could resist. What then would be our situation?"

"We are just as unprepared as China and Ethiopia were against a modern military machine. We are starting five years too late. Col. Lindbergh told us the truth and has been ignominiously treated.

"Any member of congress who dared to tell the truth five years ago would have been roasted out of his seat."

Despite his frequent demands for economy, Taylor declared that the nation must be ready to spend huge sums for defense. He urged raising of the legal debt limit to $60,000,000,000 to make possible expeditious fulfillment of the president's defense proposals.

The CIO also charged that the company persuaded its workers not to join a union and discriminated against men who did.

CHARGE 2 WITH CHECK FORGERY

A Marion youth and his 18-year-old girl companion, also from Marion, were held in the county jail today awaiting jury action on a charge of forgery.

Arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court this morning, Richard Eby, 22, and the girl pleaded innocent to the charges, waived preliminary examination and asked to be bound over to the grand jury. Bond was fixed at $3,000 in each case.

The pair was arrested by Marion authorities yesterday on a warrant signed by C. H. Brown, proprietor of the Court hotel.

Brown charged that they tendered a $25 check on a Michigan bank for room rent about three weeks ago and that he gave them $18 in change. Later the check was returned from the bank marked forged, police said.

FINDS 375 NEW HOMES BUILT IN COUNTY IN YEAR

Auditor Lists $1,300,000 Gain In Taxable Real Estate Since April, 1939.

Construction of 375 new homes in Richland county since April 1, 1939, has added $1,300,000 to the county's taxable real estate, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

More than 300 of the new homes were built in Mansfield and 235 of them were in the First and Second wards, including the southern and western residential sections of the city which have grown rapidly in recent years.

The auditor's appraisal records ranked the past year as one of the most active from the home building standpoint of any similar period in the city's history.

New industrial construction in the county for the year boosted the total property valuation increase to well over $1,500,000, the auditor said.

Building permits issued in Mansfield for the first four months of this year totaled $458,375, a drop of about 60 per cent from the same period of 1939. Last year's figures, however, included one of the city's two new $450,000 junior high schools which is not taxable.

Wolfe said the huge increase would be partly offset by the declining valuation of older properties in the city. Valuations have dropped sharply in some parts of the city, particularly in the Third ward, he pointed out.

The auditor and his assistants took pictures of all of the new homes when the appraisements were made to be used in the county records. The photographs, Wolfe asserted, make it easier to settle disputes about valuations and easier to check on short notice.

Nazi Columns Try to Reach Channel Ports

Germans Lift Pressure From Drive on Paris; Allies Map Counter-Attack Under Weygand Leadership

J. Huss, chief of the International News Service Berlin bureau, now with the German armies on the western front.

He reported that the German watchword is "on to Paris . . . and on to London! . . ." and said a race has developed between the German left and right wings and center in an effort to reach Paris first.

Berlin reported reinforced German troops were charging toward Paris, smashing through towns only 60 to 80 miles from the French capital.

London announced new air raids last night against German communication lines and supply bases in southern Belgium and western Germany, and the war office said:

"The British front is being held successfully in the face of enemy pressure."

Meanwhile in Rome, amid reports that Premier Mussolini has asked President Roosevelt's co-operation in attaining Italian territorial aims, the Fascist government of Il Duce reaffirmed its loyalty to the reich.

Allies Continue to Retire From Belgian Positions

(By United Press)

LONDON—British and Belgian forces continue to retire from positions in Belgium in accordance with military requirements on the front of northern France, where the German offensive has been slowed down, British military quarters said today.

The situation in France was described as undoubtedly pretty grim." German forces, it was said, apparently had widened the base of their bulge between Sedan and Maubeuge but had not deepened it to any extent.

The British said that it was useless to pretend that geographically the position on the main front was any better than it was on Saturday. But morally, there was improvement, it was said.

Describing retirements in Belgium, British military quarters said that the Belgian forts at Liege and Namur still were resisting.

In the "bulge" area the British said that the Germans were trying to push northwest.

"We think that the holes are being steadily plugged," the British said in declaring that German progress now was slow and that the pressure of the Nazi blitzkrieg was being diminished.

The Germans never even dented the British expeditionary force's line in Belgium, according to British military sources, although the British made a strategic retirement to protect their flank.

British military experts paid tribute to the new Allied commander, Gen. Maxime Weygand, "as a man who seems to have solved the secret of perpetual youth."

Churchill Spurs Britain To Total War at Home

LONDON—(UP)—Great Britain prepared for the total war at home today, spurred on by the warning of Prime Minister Winston Churchill that their very lives and homes might have to be sacrificed in the struggle against Germany.

In a fighting speech to the British people yesterday, the new head of the government said that whatever the "cost in agony" might be, the Allied armies would fight on until "We conquer—as conquer we must, and conquer we shall."

The speech was broadcast throughout the empire and to the United States.

The prime minister stressed the importance of the sacrifices he said were necessary if the Allies were to defeat the forces of "servitude and shame" and win "the battle for our island, for all that Britain is and all that Britain means."

Urging the people to contribute "the last ounce and the last inch of effort" of which they were capable, Churchill said:

"The interests of property, the house of labor are nothing compared to the struggle for life and honor, for right and freedom to which we have avowed ourselves."

Of the fighting now in progress in Belgium and France, he said:

"Our task is not only to win the battle but to win the war."

Berlin Reports British Driven Back Toward Channel

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN — Pounding German onslaughts against the Allied northern flank are driving the British back toward the channel ports under forced march, the Nazi high command declared today.

Seeking a southern outlet from the Nazi pressure along the Belgian-French border, it said, the French and Belgians have fallen back between Valenciennes and Maubeuge.

Capture of the inner fort system at Liege as well as all but one fort at Namur, was claimed by the high command. (A British military spokesman said the Belgians still were holding Liege and Namur.)

Germans, it said, are pursuing the Allies in Belgium, have crossed the Dendre river west of Brussels and reached the Upper Scheldt river west of Antwerp.

The retreat between Valenciennes and Maubeuge, the communique declared, cost the Allies their "heaviest losses. . . . especially armored troops."

"The enemy, after a vain attempt to break through, is retreating westward severely shattered," it said.

Already in possession of St. Quentin and the west bank of the Somme, the armored Nazi legions were within 100 miles of Calais, threatening to cut off British troops engaged in desperate fighting in Belgium, and 80 miles northeast of Paris.

Farther south, between the Oise and Aisne rivers, the Germans continued to hammer at the bending Allied battle lines near Laon, less than 80 miles from Paris itself.

It apparently was the purpose of the German high command to keep the Allies guessing whether the main Nazi offensive, bolstered by some 800,000 reinforcements withdrawn from Holland, would strike westward along the Somme toward the channel or southwest along the Oise toward Paris.

Authoritative sources said that the French were regrouping their armies for an attack northeastward from central France to relieve the pressure on the capital, but declared that effective counter measures to meet this operation had been devised.

is not making enough engines."

The senate appropriations committee made public testimony from Major Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, that American aircraft production now is about 340 planes a month, that it is expected to increase to 800 a month this summer, and that it should reach an estimated potential capacity of 1,248 monthly by December.

"At that time," Arnold said, "we would have an actual productive capacity of about 17,000 a year."

He said this would include all types — sport planes, commercial craft and purely military ones— and that this production might be stepped up by working several shifts day and night in factories.

Gen George C. Marshall, chief of staff, testified that the army would have 8,066 planes of all types, including training ships, when purchases contemplated under the pending appropriations bill were completed. This would compare with the present authorization of 5,500.

Another subject before today's aviation conference was the hastening of efforts to deliver American-made planes purchased by the Allies.

The Douglas Aircraft company announced at Santa Monica, Calif., that the Anglo-French purchasing mission has placed orders for $50,000,000 of Douglas attack bombers described by the manufacturers as the fastest ship of its kind.

Congressional action on the remainder of the president's emergency defense program was spurred by General Marshall's testimony that the regular army would be "totally and completely inadequate" at present to meet the "real test" of war.

The senate probably will take up tomorrow the increased army appropriation bill, while the house soon may consider legislation to speed up naval construction by empowering the president to suspend the Walsh-Healey law requiring government contractors to maintain a 40-hour week for employes and conform to certain wage schedules.

The talk was interlarded with references to American policy which appeared critical of the administration.

"Our danger in America is an internal danger," he said. "x x x The course we have been following in recent months leads to neither strength nor friendship nor peace.

"It will leave us hated by victor and vanquished alike. Regardless of which way the tide of battle turns. One side will claim that we aided its enemies; the other, that we did not help enough."

WHEAT PRICES RALLY SHARPLY

Collapse of Values Halted By Emergency Action of Grain Exchanges.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The emergency action of national grain exchanges in placing a limit below which futures prices could not go not only checked the recent drastic collapse of values today but resulted in a sharp rally at the principal markets.

Chicago wheat prices soared as much as 6 cents above the minimum levels fixed by board or trade directors yesterday in a special session. At Minneapolis prices were more than 6 cents above the minimums at one stage while Kansas City values rose more than 5 cents.

The action of the exchanges was taken at the suggestion of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace following Saturday's sharp price break. Chicago wheat values have slumped as much as 34 cents a bushel the past week in a semidemoralized trade that accompanied the smashing into France of German troops on the western front.

Although this was only the third time in recent market history that such emergency steps have been taken, trade proceeded normally. Chicago wheat rose 85¼ compared with the minimum of 79, while July reached 83½, 5 cents above the minimum. There were no transactions within less than 3 cents above the minimum prices.

Prices of other commodities on which minimums had been fixed also advanced with wheat.

NAZI PLANES SETTING PACE FOR SOLDIERS

ing a smashing defeat upon the bulk of the French army in open battle.

The troops seem to sense his presence in the sphere of action. Although many persons have asked whether we know just where Hitler is, naturally we cannot answer.

I cannot give my present specific location but with Hitler's dramatic touch we were taken to a vantage point for observation promptly at 6:30 a. m.

The whining and thunder of shells coming over soon made us duck and shake the dirt from our shoulders.

I and one other American have the distinction of being the sole civilians watching the battle from the German side dressed in pressed suits, white shirts and ties, in marked contrast to the uniforms surrounding us.

Initial observations in the area of operations seem to indicate to me that if the Allies hope to stand off the German onslaught by means of a counter-offensive, their chances appear slender.

For I passed endless miles of German troops and artillery columns, all equipped with the latest paraphernalia of war.

According to German estimates, the Nazi advance after today's spread will move rapidly past Shelde to Ypres, with the center moving over Cambrai to the Paris region and the left wing forging south toward Abbeville.

All the spearheads sooner or later, it was predicted, will move in the direction of the channel ports.

Hitler's general staff has provided for every contingency.

In many cases it was notable that the river Meuse was spanned by the Germans with emergency bridges prepared long before and thrown systematically into place as soon as the advance troops had chased the Allied forces from the opposite banks.

After talking with German staff officers, I can say that Hitler has initiated new battle tactics based upon demoralization of the enemy by means of air force attacks to keep him relentlessly in retreat.

This is aimed at precipitating the collapse of the enemy through confusion, lack of a rear line or rallying point and through lack of coordination.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY MAY 20, 1940.

The sad plight of Shirley Temple shows the need for a pension plan that will apply to 11-year-olds.

All good things are not expensive. In considering that "cleanliness is next to godliness" it has been observed that salvation is free and soap is cheap.

The job outlook for graduates with special or technical training is said to be better this year than last—but for those who can "do anything" the prospects are about the same.

Penalty of Post-War Neglect

WHEN the World war was interrupted on November 11, 1918, by an armistice it was optimistically assumed by millions of people that "the world had been saved for democracy" and that disarmament was to be the order of a new day.

It was realized at the time that it was only the superior military force of the Allies that made temporary victory possible in 1918 and compelled Germany's acceptance of the terms of the Versailles treaty.

Not until the latter part of 1921, it will be recalled, did the United States complete a peace treaty with Germany and Austria. When such an effort was made in May, 1920, President Wilson contended that peace should not be established without exacting from the German government "reparations for infinite wrong which it did to the peoples whom it attacked and whom we professed to assist when we entered the war."

Substantial reduction in armament was among the achievements sought in the several years immediately after the Versailles treaty had been signed, and at that time the Allies were in position to enforce disarmament demands upon Germany and also to give encouragement and support to earnest efforts to establish a republic in Germany and bring about post-war recovery.

Collection of reparations was the principal thought of the victors, however, and apparently no thought was given to the possibility of conditions developing in Germany which would bring such an inconspicuous figure as Adolf Hitler into supreme power.

Nor was any particular attention paid to violation of the disarmament terms of the Versailles treaty, which sad oversight made it possible for Hitler and his cohorts to proceed without hindrance in building up the devastating mechanized military establishment with which Nazi invaders subjugated Czechoslovakia and Poland and are now wreaking havoc in Holland, Belgium, and France.

Dire predictions are being made as to the probability of Hitler attempting to extend domination of Naziism to the Western Hemisphere, in the event of victory over the Allies. President Roosevelt has directed attention to vulnerability of the United States to air attack, and military experts have pointed out the inadequacy of present defenses against implements of modern warfare.

However much the people of this country may wish for continuance of peace, it is world conditions that must be considered in setting up a defense program suitable to the needs of a nation that is great in every way except in its ability to protect itself against foreign aggression.

'Travel Now, Pay Later' Plan

RAILROAD trips on credit will be made available, beginning May 20, by 66 great railroads in this country. Tickets may be bought "on time" as we buy a car, radio, electric refrigerator, or anything else of value. The traveler can't just walk up to the ticket window five minutes before train time, of course, but must make an application which is accepted or not, according to his credit standing. This does not necessitate such a long wait as might appear, since 24-hour service is planned.

Credit is available only for trips costing $50 and up. The traveler signs a note at the time of application, but makes no cash payment. After that, he pays in 12 monthly installments. The carrying charge is about eight per cent of the amount borrowed, making the $50 trip cost $54.

The traveler deals only with the ticket agent or travel agent. The railroads deal with the banks. Such credit may be used for Pullman accommodations, all-expense tours which include hotels and meals, side trips and all services ordinarily sold through railroad ticket offices.

Thus, it is believed, families with thrifty habits will be encouraged to take better accommodations than otherwise, and to have their vacations even when leisure for travel falls in a period of financial stringency.

Credit Belongs to Gifted Few

FEELING superior to former generations, because of wonderful progress since their time, is one of the most vain and baseless of human emotions. To realize this deflating fact, it need only be asked, at a prideful moment, "How much of this have I done myself?" The honest answer nearly always will be "nothing."

This sad truth is set forth eloquently by Ted Robinson, a newspaper columnist whose heart has been humbled by habitual delving into old news files.

> "When we read about grandpa's newly invented luxuries," he says, "such as kerosene lamps, base burner parlor stoves, horse cars, and so on, we smile with joy over grandpa's naive stupidity and our own enlightened cleverness. In fact, we feel as if we had personally invented modern heating, lighting and transportation. And 999 out of 1,000 of us, magically transported back to an era 70 years ago, would not be able to do one thing toward improvement of the conditions we should find."

The fact is that present conditions, in matters of enlightenment and convenience, came from the contributions of a gifted few. They deserve honor. The rest of us have mostly just floated down the stream of time, probably being good citizens according to our gifts and lights, but contributing little to human progress.

Can Rule of Force Win?

NO MATTER what the creed, where the land or what the era," says Evangeline Booth, head of the English Salvation Army, "the best in the world is not defeated by the worst. The war will not last. It is a passing hurricane."

Everybody would like to believe that. But hundreds of millions of people are now doubtful about it. They see their ideals threatened as never before in modern times, by a political cult acknowledging no control but its own predatory will—the "will to power," as the anarchist philosopher Nietzsche called it.

Somebody has surely thought to remark that Chamberlain has discarded his umbrella because his reign is over.

Science note: Unless food floats within reach of an oyster it will starve.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The newest deal in Washington is over at the department of justice. It was born back in January and its papa is Bob Jackson, who first paced the justice corridors then as attorney general of the United States.

Typical of the newest deal is an occurrence which took place the other day at a staff conference. The one-time country lawyer who now is the nation's No. 1 attorney, was presiding. An official asked what was to be done about employes putting their feet on the desks.

"If you are going to have a rule against putting feet on the desks," answered Jackson, "it certainly will cramp my style."

Another perturbed and jumpy official once asked the attorney general if he didn't think there should be a rule against employes reading newspapers. That quizzical smile which Jackson uses where other men might use anger or irritation spread over his face and he stated simply that if the men got their work done and still had time to read the newspapers, why not.

Now we are getting at the crux of the newest deal—the emphasis is on accomplishment, not on the routine used in obtaining them.

* * *

'Phone Policy Changes.

IT IS impossible, of course, to run a department—or any other business, for that matter—with thousands of employes without some policies. I don't mean that the justice department does not have these. Its offices are not tea party parlors. Actually, Jackson leaves the routine matters of office administration to his department heads, but his personal policy of eliminating strict regulations is seeping all the way down to the third assistant secretaries.

There was a time, for example, when any justice employe, picking up the telephone to make a call was asked sternly by the operator: "Is this call personal or business?" Jackson quashed that—explaining that he assumed all government employes knew that personal calls were not to be made from government telephones and that if he couldn't rely on their integrity in such matters without asking each time, then they shouldn't be government employes.

Formerly, too, there was a general understanding that all workers in the department had to be at their desks from 9 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.—the normal working day in these parts. Here again, the emphasis is on results.

From the newsman's standpoint, Jackson has raised his popularity several notches by rescinding another rule—that which forbade any official to tell a reporter anything more than that "all information is handled through the press office." Now, officials can talk their heads off if they feel that way about it.

* * *

Maybe a Life Rule.

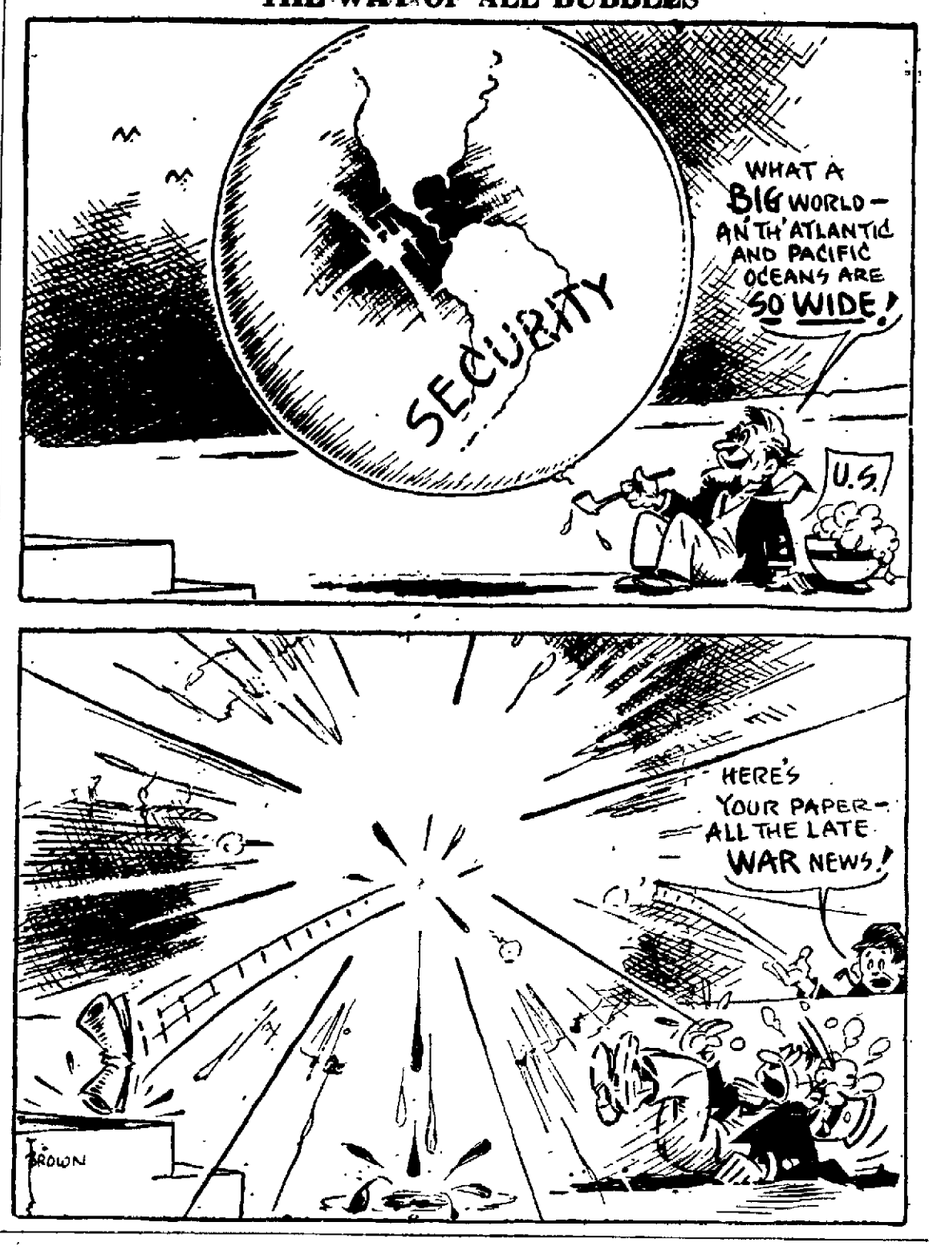
MAYBE all this emphasis on accomplishment dates back to the days after Jackson's graduation from the Jamestown (N. Y.) high school. Only 18 years old, Bob spent a year in a Jamestown law office, another year in the Albany Law school, and had to wait months for his 21st birthday before he could be admitted to the bar. He's probably the most eminent practicing attorney in the country today without a law degree.

If the legal profession of those days had required degrees before admission to the bar, young Bob might have had to take Aunt Lena Jackson's advice and become a farmer.

Jackson has made one strict rule, however. Oddly enough, it is one which may catch the attorney general himself. It is: any one resigning to run for office can't come back to the department if he loses.

Of course, if the justice department's newest dealer got mixed up in the presidential or vice presidential races—and lost—he could hardly expect to come back anyway.

THE WAY OF ALL BUBBLES



If British King Comes to Canada

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Possibility that the King and Queen of Great Britain, accompanied of course by other royal refugees, may move to Canada, and that, if worst comes to worst, the British fleet may operate from a Canadian base, is being seriously discussed in military circles here.

This is based, of course, on the thought that perhaps Britain may not be able to resist a Nazi blietzkrieg. But it is possible even assuming that the blietzkrieg is not completely successful. The British would not want to risk the moral effect of the killing by bombs of their royal family.

It is well known to the British government that the Nazis made determined efforts to destroy the Dutch royal family in their escape. Of course the moral effect of the flight of the British royal family would also be serious, but would be construed, it is thought, as an indication that the empire would go on fighting, and that eventually the Nazis would be crushed.

* * *

IT WILL be remembered that it was revealed after the last war that the then Prince of Wales, he who is now the Duke of Windsor, wanted to fight in the front-line trenches. Lloyd George, then prime minister, forbade it. The prime argued that if he were killed, it would rebound to the glory of the empire as well as increase loyalty and respect for the royal family, whereas if he escaped, it would certainly make for good will toward th[illegible] simply because he had risked his life just as the humblest tommy.

But Lloyd George is said to have replied, the prince had overlooked a third possibility—that he might be captured by the Germans, which would be little short of a disaster in its effect on morale.

This gloomy prediction on the part of some experts that Britain might be "blitzkrieged" within six weeks after the Nazi start operations against the tight little island does not mean that those who believe that the British fleet would still conduct a long-range blockade, still maintain operations intended to check that iron ore supply from Sweden, and that what man power they could deliver to the French army would always be available.

* * *

FRANCE would get continual reinforcements of men, trained pilots, and supplies not only from Canada but from Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, they insist. Persons in a position to know sentiment in those dominions say this source of aid has been under-estimated. For example, the Australians now have a program calling for 57,000 trained pilots, airplane mechanics and ground-crew men in the next two and a half years.

The Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans, it is insisted, believe that they stand or fall with the empire, and will go on fighting to the end.

Movement of the direction of empire activities to Canada, it is pointed out, would bring the war that much closer to the United States, and feeling might be expected to rise to the boiling point here. This would be enhanced if certain other things suspected in military circles here develop—for instance, that much talked about Nazi revolution in Brazil.

Listen, World!

"Things Will Never be the Same Again!"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY'VE quarrelled bitterly, their marriage is breaking up. "What's the use of trying to go on?" sobs the young wife. "Our love can never be the same again, after the things we've said to each other. We might as well drop it all right now."

He's made a mess of things, wants to fade out. His friends are trying to persuade him to pull himself together, make a fresh start. But he can't see it. "It wouldn't work," he says. "Things have changed; there'd never be the same old kick in things—"

* * *

She's been offered a new and bigger job across the country, but she's turning it down, staying in the position she's held for 15 years. "Perhaps I'm foolish," she says, "but I know I wouldn't be happy, 'way off from everyone. Things could never be the same again."

* * *

Their little girl has died. The home that glowed with love and laughter stands cold and neglected. They might adopt another child—but, no. "We can't face it!" they wail. "It wouldn't be the same; not with our darling gone!"

* * *

"IT CAN NEVER BE THE SAME AGAIN:" . . . that thought has wasted more lives, blocked more growth, than all the epidemics put together.

NEVER THE SAME AGAIN? Of course it won't be! And why should you expect it to be?

Are YOU the same person you were seven years ago? You certainly are not, and you'd yell the roof off if you were. Are you still toting your baby teeth . . . sucking your thumb . . . playing with your Teddy Bear? Hardly! Only mummies remain in status quo . . . only idiots have the same ideas at 40 which they had at 14. Normal, growing things change constantly, and welcome that change even though they pay for it in pain.

Things "never the same" after that first bitter quarrel . . . that first grave mistake . . . that first difficult adjustment, or racking grief? True, they're not. But what of it? You've lost your first romantic illusions about each other, but you'll love all the more widely and wisely because of that loss if you have the spunk to face it and go on . . .

You've made a mistake? Tasted the bitterness of humiliation? But did you expect to be a child all your days, knowing nothing of life's tests and challenges, living in the same narrow rut of habit and emotion? Are your heart and mind never to seek new highways?

Or would you rather be a placid slug, incapable of either ecstasy or heartbreak? As for grief, isn't love worth it? "Nothing's the same since she went," you cry. But nothing would have remained the same if she had stayed. Life would have called to her if Death had not . . . sooner or later we must open our arms and let them go. But those who have really known Love walk straight and proud forever after, in its remembered glory.

"Things will never be the same again! Thank God they won't! Only the coward wants them to be!

Mushrooms

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WARM spring rain fell last night. Early this morning I hunted mushrooms on the slope above the house. Behind fallen logs and about the bases of dead apple trunks, I found several colonies of the spongy pinkis fungae. There is an element of surprise and real delight in coming upon a clump of crumpled looking growths that were not there at all the day before. They are, it seems to me, like fairy gifts.

Yet there is nothing fairylike about their taste or flavor which is almost as rich and satisfying as beefsteak. My wife dipped the ones I found in salt water and fried them in butter for breakfast. I shall, doubtless, go mushroom hunting every time it rains.

Contrary to the general opinion they do not grow, completely in one night. What happens is the outgrowth of long preparation below the ground. The vast network of interwoven threadlike hyphae that has developed there, is merely waiting for warmth and moisture to push upward into visible form. What seems like magic is in reality merely natural consequence. These spongy fungae so edible and tasty, are cousins to mold bacteria, lichens and poisonous toadstools.

They grow from spores — tiny, asexual, often microscopic bits of life that can withstand great changes of temperature. These are scattered by wind, slugs, birds or animals. Once established they return year after year whenever the seasonal requirements of warmth and moisture are available.

Edible varieties of fungi are too rare to be of much value as food for man. In general the fungus family, as a whole, does more harm to a farmer than it does good. All sorts of fungus diseases attack the root crops on which men and animals depend for food. Moulds rot our fruit, spoil our bread, meat and vegetables, mildew textile fabrics, books and papers. Whole books have been written about fungi—and the end is not yet.

But up on our hill at sunrise, damp with dew and folded in delicate convolutions I found two kinds of edible spongy fungi, one pink and creamy, the other tinged with black, on hollow stems. They were delicious.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—If the European war continues at its present world-shaking pace, it is possible that the Republican national convention will be postponed.

This possibility is being deliberated privately and very seriously by GOP leaders in Chicago, Washington and New York. No decision has yet been reached, but two strong arguments based on events abroad make it a better than even money bet that the convention will be delayed if there is no let-up in the war.

First, it is argued that during such titanic upheavals the people would be uninterested in party politics, and the convention would be unable to obtain uppermost attention either in their thoughts or in the press.

Second, that it would be unwise, if not impossible, for the Republican party to formulate a platform on foreign policy and the war. This is because there is a strong—and growing—GOP element favoring some form of direct aid to the Allies; in other words, agreeing with the president.

* * *

Foreign Policy.

ON THE other hand, a very vocal minority is vehemently isolationist. In the middle is still another group fearful of both sides, and prefering to take no stand. A battle-royal in the convention between these factions might greatly embarrass any candidate.

Also, inner party leaders are worried over fighting a presidential campaign on the war issue. As the minority party, the GOP is not in a position to shift its policy overnight to meet changing conditions. The Democrats can do that. Roosevelt can take the air any day and enunciate what would amount to an entirely new platform. But the GOP platform, once approved by the convention, is the party's stand. It can't be juggled around.

Note—If the convention is postponed until August or September, it would actually meet on June 24, but recess at the call of the national committee. In this case the Democrats probably will do likewise; for Roosevelt already has proposed that both parties hold their conventions in the autumn.

* * *

War Notes.

WAR DEPARTMENT cables from the battle front report that the French are being crippled by German airplanes which blow up their roads behind the lines, upsetting their lines of communication, and preventing them from bringing up shells and reinforcements. . . . Senator George of Georgia, once an object of the purge, is now the staunch supporter of the president on foreign policy and rearmament. He is giving the war department strong backing for appropriations. . . . Some of the European reports indicate that the people of Norway, Denmark, Holland, etc., surrendered to Germany because they had no great faith in their own governmental and economic systems. Many had been depressed by low wages or unemployment, didn't seem to think the system was worth fighting for. . . . When you look back on the Spanish civil war and compare it with the current surrender of neutrals, you can't escape the conclusion that the Spaniards really had backbone.

* * *

Retreat to America.

ONE REASON for the international pessimism now pervading the White House is the course which an Allied defeat would be almost sure to take.

Roosevelt's military advisers have pointed out that the British Isles, if attacked, are certain to cave in, or at least to be given such a battering that the government will flee to Canada.

The British fleet will try to save something from the debacle, and the most natural place for it to go will be Canada and the British island possessions in American waters—Jamaica, Bermuda, the Bahamas.

In other words, if the British government is defeated at home, it will try to save just as much as it can and rally together the rest of the far-flung empire—Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand.

When and if this happens, especially if the remnants of the British fleet come to American waters, then American neutrality is going to be put to the biggest test in history. If German airplanes follow, the United States may have a hard time staying out of war.

* * *

Old Glory.

THE only place in the U. S. A. where Old Glory flies 24 hours a day is the Capitol building. Two large flags, 7½ by 14 feet, are kept continuously aloft every day in the year over the east and west porticos of the senate and the house of representatives. They are removed only when frayed, then promptly replaced with new ones.

This custom dates back to World war days, when thousands of requests poured in from citizens and patriotic organizations urging that the flag be kept flying night and day over the Capitol. Before the war, it was hauled down at sunset.

* * *

Roosevelt's Prediction.

THERE is one conference which the president had with congressional leaders from which he is getting no enjoyment—even though he was absolutely right. This was the conference last summer in which Roosevelt urged congress to revise the neutrality act because war was imminent.

This was at the tail end of the last session, and the president wanted congress to remain in Washington longer. Congress wanted to go home. So he summond some of the leaders to the White House, including the late great Senator Borah.

The full details of what Roosevelt told the leaders never has leaked out, though it was known that he predicted war by last autumn. However, he also went so far as to predict that Holland, Belgium, Denmark and Switzerland would be invaded. The only countries he went wrong on were Norway, which he failed to include, and Switzerland, which at this writing has not been invaded.

Borah and Roosevelt, though differing on politics, always were warm personal friends. And this was a case where the isolationist senator differed emphatically. He told the president, "My information is different."

With one exception all the other congressional leaders agreed with Borah, and congress adjourned. That one exception also was a Republican—Senator Warren Austin, scholarly Vermonter and party whip, who although disagreeing with Roosevelt on most domestic policies has consistently seen eye to eye with him on foreign affairs. At this fateful conference, Austin warned his colleagues that time would prove the president right.

* * *

Merry-Go-Round.

REPRESENTATIVE Mike Bradley, scrappy Philadelphia New Dealer who was the wartime telegrapher to the late Admiral Sims, rolls his own cigarets, a habit he acquired in the navy. . . . Favorite recreation of Senator David Walsh of Massachusett is bocci, an Italian form of bowling on the green. He has a bocci court in the backyard of his Clinton, Mass., home.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

A Verse, My Comfort.

A simple verse, my comforter
On some hard day.
Some tender, gentle, healing lines
Take care away.

I will be sore distressed and then
I will recall
Old lines of beauty or of worth
And grief will fall

Away from me as Christian's load
Fell long ago.
A couplet can hold peace, it can
New strength bestow.

OF HEAVEN'S BENEDICTION++

CHAPTER XIV

Julian Carlton's eyes narrowed and he spoke with annoyance. "Of course it would be! No woman in love ever holds a man's mistakes against him. An essentially feminine woman likes to forgive. It makes her feel noble. It purifies her."

"How do you know so much?" Brooke said.

He smiled. "I don't. I'm always learning. You don't believe that, do you, that Rod's in love with Irene?"

"He didn't love me enough. I know that. But I thought he married her for her money, chiefly."

He made a wry face. "That helped certainly." Then, "Have you no friends here?"

"I have one."

"A man?"

She nodded and spoke briefly, appreciatively of Jim. When Julian said he wondered that she had not returned home, she told him about her home, her father's second marriage and added, as a happier note, that she was going to California with Mrs. Kingsbury in April.

He smiled. "I'm betting on you, Brooke."

"For what?"

"To find Brooke Carter."

* * *

Flushing, she turned her face aside and looked out the window, seeing people bowing to the wind, their chins in their collars. Wondering if he were making fun of her, she asked, "Is love so important? My love for Rod wasn't at its best when I was with him—but in my thoughts of him when he was away. Quickly she glanced at him and smiled. "But in these past weeks when I've been alone so much and walked so much, I've often thought that love is—is silly and stupid. The great struggle is to live. But it's a circle. You come back to love because you love some one or because some one loves you, but mostly because you love."

He flicked the ash from his cigarette. "There are two kinds of people in the world—the ones who hurt and the ones who are hurt." Then, with severity, "I won't let you talk any more about it."

He wouldn't let her talk any more about it! She picked up her gloves as Julian summoned the waiter. Outside they walked in silence to his car, the wind tearing at their faces. At the sight of a fat little woman chasing a runaway hat half a block away, Julian put back his head and laughed more heartily than she had heard any one laugh in a long time. He did the most unexpected things, she thought. You never knew what he would say or do next. They talked about a currently popular book until they reached the door of the apartment and she turned to him.

"Thank you. It was fun."

His eyes searching her face again, his well-cut mouth parting into his quick smile. . . . "Yes, wasn't it? What will you do when you go in?"

"Dinner and read. Why?"

"I wanted to know."

When he left, she stood still thinking of him, amused, baffled, his personality filling her mind, each conclusion as to the real Julian Carlton discarded as soon as it was reached. Friend or foe? He had not said that he would see her again nor had he volunteered any information about himself. She felt as if he had placed her under a microscope and she couldn't be certain even if she liked him.

Ellen came in, uttering a happy exclamation. "Oh, Miss Brooke! My, you look so much better! The new books came." She leaned closer and whispered, "Francis has been drinking again. I hope he's all right tomorrow or—or it will be terrible—if she wants him to drive her. His breath!"

* * *

In a small warm crowded restaurant the following evening, Brooke told Jim about Julian Carlton. Jim looked dour, advised caution. His dreamy eyes were puzzled, too.

Brooke said, "Whenever I felt I didn't like him, that he was arrogant and remote and too inquisitive, he'd say or do something to make me like him. I liked him and I didn't like him, and he kept me on the defensive all yesterday afternoon. He wouldn't let me be sorry for myself and he told me some things I'll remember—things about Rod I never thought of before. Jim, he said that Rod was in love with her."

"In love with her money, you mean . . ."

"No. With her. Enchanted with her, he said."

"I don't believe it."

"I do. I'm beginning to. He also said that it wouldn't last."

"You wouldn't take him back, Brooke? You wouldn't . . ."

"Do you hate him so much?"

"For what he did to you—yes! You wouldn't! You wouldn't be that kind of fool . . ."

Her voice was quiet. "But I would. I couldn't help it. I—I can't cut it out of me."

He grinned and shook his head. "You women . . ."

They walked back to the apartment, her arm through his, her heart calm, feeling safe and comfortable with Jim. She did not wonder at his silences, and nothing he said ever surprised her. Nor did she weigh her words with him.

At the door he said, "It won't be long before you sail."

"No, it won't. But Mrs. Kingsbury's niece looms up every now and then, another barrier.

He patted her hand. "Don't let Jessica get you down. You can sneak away from her and the old lady and have yourself some fun. We'll have to do something to celebrate . . ."

"We can blow taps over my past," she thought. She shook her head doubtfully. "I think I'll begin to know how a secretary-companion really functions when we begin to get ready to go. There probably won't be time for a celebration." Or any reason for one . . .

As she went into her room and pulled off her hat it occurred to her, too, that although there wasn't any reason for going home, she would ask Mrs. Kingsbury's permission to go sometime before she sailed.

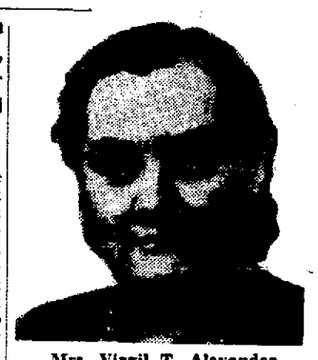
Pain In Arm and Back Often Kept Mansfield Lady Awake

Also Had Bad Taste in Mouth, Spots Before Eyes, Coated Tongue, and other Troubles. Praises Vendol Relief.



Mrs. Virgil T. Alexander

"For the past four years I have been bothered by constipation, but at times it was worse, and when bad spells came on it made me miserable," said Mrs. Virgil T. Alexander whose husband is employed by the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company and who lives at 296 W. Fifth street, Mansfield, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store.

"Sometimes the pains in my arm and back were so bad I could hardly stand it, and kept me awake for hours many a night. Seemed the least bit of extra exertion would tire me out, but one of the worst things this condition brought on was a coated tongue, unpleasant breath; bad taste in my mouth, and I'd often see little spots darting before my eyes.

"Even a light meal would often lay heavy and my food turned sour in my stomach, forming gas that made me feel tight and bloated. Little particles of undigested food would rift up into my throat.

"I was advised to try Vendol, and truly I never took any medicine that gave such grand relief. Seemed it was made just for me. Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets acted so nicely on my bowels and gave such grand relief from constipation that it wasn't long till all these pains in my back, arms, and limbs were only a memory; all feeling of gas, bloating, 'heartburn', acid dyspepsia, had gone and my tongue cleared off. Bad taste in my mouth disappeared, and I'm never troubled now with spots before my eyes. Vendol gave me wonderful relief and I believe it will help everyone suffering like I did."

Vendol is for sale by all druggists in Mansfield and nearby towns, and is especially recommended here by Central Drug Store, corner Main and Fourth streets.

Double Wedding Ceremony Read For Two Cousins

A double marriage ceremony of interest to persons in the Mansfield area was an event of May 11 at Covington, Ky. Two cousins, Virgil and Gaylord Mumaw, took as their brides, Miss Jean McCune and Miss Geneva Holt, respectively.

Rev. John Rind, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Covington, officiated. Miss McCune, who is the daughter of Glenn McCune, Crestline, wore a peach crepe frock. Miss Holt, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Turner Holt of Shenandoah, was attired in blue crepe. Both girls wore white accessories and corsages of sweet peas.

Virgil Mumaw is the son of Mrs. W. H. Scott, 9 Wood street, while Gaylord is the son of Mrs. Vesta Mumaw, Ashland. Informally Speaking...

May 20, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

Marianne

WE LOOKED for your car to drive up yesterday as we felt sure you'd pay us a visit on such a nice day—that is, we did, until the wind blew up a terrific storm along about 2 o'clock, so then we gave up hope until next week-end—when we really expect you to come over.

* * * * *

But even though you weren't here, you should have been, because some other folks you know were in town. . . . Dr. Charles Brown, jr. spent the week-end with his father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, at their home on Park avenue west. . . . Young Dr. Brown is a resident physician at St. Joseph's hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich., now.

* * * * *

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Knarr arrived over the week-end with their daughter, Joann, and stopped off at Mrs. Knarr's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fisher. . . . You probably recall that the Knarrs are affiliated with the University of Chicago settlement in Chicago—and they left shortly after their arrival Saturday for Boston, Mass., where they will attend the National Boys' conference, and from there they will go to the New York World fair—stopping back here in about ten days, for six-year-old Joann, who is staying with her grandparents, the Fishers. . . . And the threesome will remain here for a month before returning to Chicago—so you'd better arrange a trip over to see them, Lucy, as I'm sure you remember Mrs. Knarr, who was formerly Marjorie Fisher.

* * * * *

Another former resident, in town for a few days, was William Croaks Pauley, who is now a landscape architect in Atlanta, Ga. . . . He has returned south after visiting here with his mother, Mrs. L. A. Pauley.

* * * * *

JUST as I've told you so many times before, Lucy, there's no denying the fact that our college students are leaders on their respective campuses. . . . Robert Marks recently was elected vice president of his fraternity, Beta Theta Pi, at Wittenberg college in Springfield. . . . A junior at the school, he's also a busy staff member of "The Torch," the college weekly paper. . . . I think you know Robert's parents too, they're Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Marks.

* * * * *

Charlotte Brightbill will remember her 19th birthday for some time to come—she had such a wonderful time. . . . She went sailing with Dick Collins and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Collins of Huron on their yacht yesterday. . . . Her birthday dinner was served aboard the boat, and the party cruized on Lake Erie most all day.

* * * * *

This was an important week-end for Jacques Edwards, as he went down to Athens to visit Frederick Wagner, who's a freshman at Ohio university. . . . And speaking of vacationers—Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Stephens were among the recent guests at the Williamsburg Inn down south in Williamsburg, Va.

* * * * *

I WAS talking with Mrs. Clara Keefe the other day, and she told me that her granddaughter, Martha Ann Fox, (who's a pupil of the seventh grade in a Dayton school) won the county spelling contest for her school. . . . Martha Ann received a medal and a camera, while the school was awarded a cup and a plaque for the honor. . . . Incidentally, Lucy, you and your mother probably remember Martha Ann's mother as she was Gertrude Keefe of this city before she became Mrs. George Fox and moved to Dayton with her husband.

* * * * *

ALL of which seems to wind up the news for today, so I'll be looking for a letter from you soon—and above all, don't forget, we'll be expecting you next week-end.

Lovingly,

Marianne

Mansfield Man, Galion Girl Married Yesterday at Home

IN AN IMPRESSIVE home ceremony Sunday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock, Ruth Elizabeth Bernard of Galion exchanged marriage vows with J. Kent Oberlin of Mansfield, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Oberlin of Massillon, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Margaret Bernard, Harding way west, Galion.

An improvised altar of ferns, palms and baskets of white larkspurs and lighted with two seven-branched candelabra provided the setting for the single ring service which was read by Rev. Father Louis Huffman of St. Joseph's Catholic church. Spreading bouquets were used to decorate the mantel of the living room where 30 guests, relatives and friends were seated for the wedding.

Gounod's "Ave Maria," and "At Dawning" were played before Lohengrin's wedding march.

For her wedding, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace and net over bridal satin, fashioned with sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves, and modified train. A bride's hat of net was topped with white rosebuds and lilies-of-the-valley, and was tied at the back of her head with a large bow of net. Calla lilies were used in her arm bouquet.

Frances Bernard was her sister's only attendant. She wore Alencon lace and net in a shade of paradise blue. Her bridesmaid's hat was pink, and was trimmed with pink rosebuds and shaded blue forget-me-nots. Talisman roses were used in her arm bouquet.

Matt J. Mosbacher of Galion, brother-in-law of the bride, was the best man.

At Bemiller's a wedding luncheon was served to the guests following the ceremony. Later the couple left for a trip through the east, destination not revealed. For traveling, Mrs. Oberlin wore a black and white ensemble, completed with corsage of gardenias.

Mr. Oberlin and his bride have a new home on the Lexington avenue road, Mansfield.

Mrs. Oberlin was graduated from Galion high school, and attended the College of St. Therese at Winona, Minn. Prior to her marriage she was employed at the North Electric Manufacturing company here.

Mr. Oberlin is sales manager for the Martin Steel Products company, Mansfield. He attended Wooster college after his graduation from Massillon high school.

Out-of-town guests were present for the ceremony and luncheon from Lakewood, Massillon, Canton, Shelby, Bucyrus, Crestline, Mansfield, and Ironton.
